THE UNI AND SCRAPS.
 Everyone knows that class fights are not approved of by the faculty of the University of Nebraska. By class fights we indicate disorderly free-for-alls occurring on the campus during class hours. They disturb classes, the tempers of the students and the whole trend of University business. They result in damage to goods, chattels and wearing apparel also, that is not to be sneezed at. The parents who have to pay for these, do not highly approve of fights for that reason.

RIFLE CLUB MEETS.
 Discuss Plans For the Year and Prepare For Big Rifle Contest.
 Thursday evening after drill the Rifle club met in convocation hall. It was found that the club owed an assessment of five dollars to the National Rifle association and to pay this an amount of fifty cents was levied on each member. Plans for the coming year were talked over and it was agreed that only hard practice would bring honors to Nebraska's shooting squad in the National Rifle association contest to be held some time in January. Also the reports of such affairs are seized upon eagerly by the sensational newspapers and spread over the country, leading to disorders among the state high schools in endeavors to emulate the admired collegian. Thus a few desultory wrestling matches on a college campus may evolve no end of trouble for a great many more persons than would appear on first thought. Hence the wise men who think ahead, do not approve of class fights that are disorganized and arise at hours when University discipline is infringed upon. Toward the regulated interclass wars, however, the view is far different. In these affairs the college as one man, says "Go to it and get a bloody nose." It is fun for the participants prepared for what fate may bring, it is fun for the faculty, many of whom would enjoy doing such things to some of the warriors, and it is fun for the spectators, most of whom have "been there," and can sit congratulating themselves that their foolish years have waned.

BOTANISTS TO INVOICE TREES.
 Dean C. E. Bessey has put his class in Systematic Botany at work on a census of the trees growing in the city. He hopes soon to be able to give the number of trees now growing in Lincoln, and to have them classified according to species. This is the first time an actual count of trees has been taken here.

C. E. To Sing Esperanto.
 Next Sunday morning the songs used in the Christian Endeavor convention service will be rendered in Esperanto, which is the new international language. The meeting will be held in the auditorium and a special choir in which some University students may appear, will lead the song service.

Democratic Club Elects.
 The Democratic club elected officers Wednesday afternoon and decided to meet Tuesday evening at the Lincoln hotel to hear from the various candidates. J. F. Rahn, the newly elected president, will preside, and several local candidates for election will address them.
