GIRLS GO TO MISSOURI GAME TO ROOT IN A BODY.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN PROVE LOYAL

Miss Ensign and Student Leaders on Program at Luncheon—Banners
Given Out.

The University Girls' club held the largest meeting in its history Saturday noon, when the luncheon was given by them at the Temple banquet hall.

Everything was successful. So great was the crowd that many were unable to reach the luncheon tables. Nobody, however, cared, as the enthusiasm ran high and the jollification started immediately.

The Program.

Miss Ensign gave a short talk expressing her delight at the large attendance and the manifest enthusiasm; Lola Berry, president of the club, spoke on "Purposes and Aims of the Girls' Club"; Miss O'Kee gave an Irish monologue that took the house by storm; news of the Girls' club at the University of California was given by Louise Powell; Mrs. Avery closed the program with a message of congratulation.

Banners Waved.

Scarlet and cream banners were distributed among the girls and most of them went to the section reserved for them in the grandstand.

A second session was held all through the Missouri game.

The action of the girls has set a precedent that will be followed in the years to come with more girls' squads and successful Cornhusker teams.

Have a Reputation.

Nebraska's co-ed rooters are not only making a hit at home, but are also attracting considerable attention at other universities, as is shown by the following clipping from the University Missourian.

"The Nebraskan football team defeated the Kearney Normalites by a score of 117 to 0. This remarkable score is attributed to the cheering of the girls' rooting squad."

THREE HUNDRED REGISTER.

School of Agriculture Opens with Prospect for a Record
Enrollment.

With an enrollment for the first day of almost 300 students, and a probable increase of ten per cent in the total registration, the first term of the school of agriculture began at the State Farm Monday.

Registrar E. M. Rutledge spent the entire day at the Farm superintending the registration. Last night he reported the unusually large enrollment for the day, which is an increase of seventy or eighty students over the first day last year. If his predictions of a ten per cent increase in total registration for the school comes true there will be between 425 and 450 students enrolled.

The standards at the school have been raised, the course now being for four instead of three years. Classes begin this morning and registration still continues.

DEFEAT MISSOURI TIGERS BY PLAYING STRAIGHT FOOTBALL

In one of the prettiest exhibitions of straight football put up by a Cornhusker team for many years, the strong Missouri University Tigers were defeated Saturday on Nebraska Field by the decisive score of 34-0.

It must be said for the Tigers that they brought up a strong, well drilled, well trained team, which contested every foot of the way, but which was simply overwhelmed and beaten down by Nebraska's wonderful offense, and was powerless to gain against the rejuvenated defense put up by Stiehm's men. Nebraska's backfield was a veritable Stiehm-engine.

First Half 6-0.

It was slow in getting under way, and the first half ended with a score of 6-0, but during the intermission, the force draft was turned on, and thereafter the powerful machine gained speed and energy with every play, till at the end of the final period, it was romping up and down the field like a switch-engine in a yard full of empty box cars.

Racely Injured.

The day was marred, however, by an accident to George Racely, the Cornhuskers' speediest halfback, who suffered an injury to his leg that will probably keep him out of the next few games. Dr. Oliver Everett, team physician, expresses the belief that Racely will be able to play against Michigan, however.

The large score was a surprise not only to the Show Me people, but even to the closest followers of Cornhusker development. It is estimated by good authorities, that the team played 100 per cent better football than it did a week ago at Minneapolis, and that is going some. On straight football Nebraska gained 926 yards, and with forward passes and recovered kicks included, 974, while the Tigers' total gain was but 77 yards, and never during the entire game did they make ten yards in three successive downs, save once when the Cornhuskers were penalized for off-side play. Nebraska's forward passing, however, was far inferior to the exhibition put up in the other departments.

The first pass of the game came very nearly resulting in a touchdown for Missouri, when Warner passed the ball accidentally straight into the arms of a Missouri halfback, who ran nearly to the goal line before Warner caught him.

This was the only time the scarlet and cream goal was in danger during the whole game, and here, the line held for downs.

Frank and Chauna Star.

Owen Frank, as usual, was the particular star as a ground gainer, making four of the touchdowns, but Walter Chauner put up an exhibition of playing left end that should win him All-American recognition. On the defense he was absolutely impregnable for an inch, while on the offense, three successive times he was down the field so swiftly under Owen Frank's long punts that he recovered the ball, and once his speed cost Nebraska a penalty, as the descending ball struck him on the shoulder before he could dodge it. It was the most brilliant game at end that Nebraska has seen in many years.

Lofgren Too.

Gus Lofgren at the other end, deserves special mention also. Gus is a bear at breaking interference, although not so speedy as Chauner in getting under punts.

Owen Frank, Ernest Frank, and Warner were able to pull off long runs around the ends with regularity.

Owen once skirting our right with Purdy interfering, for 80 yards and a touchdown. Shonka, Harmon, Elliott and Pearson were impregnable at all times, and after the first attempt or so, big Zack Hornberger put a stop to any designs on center. As one of the Missouri players is alleged to have said after the game, "We expected to meet a football team, but were not looking for anything like that. I don't see how Minnesota did it."

Several Injured.

The game has not given the team an inflated idea of its prowess, however, and there will be no let-up in the practice before the Ames games

FRESHMEN OVERWHELM SOPHS IN BIG SCRAP

ANNUAL OLYMPICS BRINGS VIC-TORY FOR UNDERCLASSMEN.

SECOND YEAR MEN LACKED NUMBERS

Flag Rush Proved to Be an Exciting
Event from Spectators' View-Point.

The Olympics were held Saturday morning on Nebraska Field. Everything was in the best possible condition for the interclass struggle, the weather could not have been better, the enthusiasm of the crowd and the spirit with which the classes went into the fray was unsurpassed by even the football crowd in the afternoon.

The events in which individual members of the class participated were about evenly divided. Kennedy of the sophomores, easily won for them the honors in the cross-country run. In the boxing events Sam Waugh, a freshman, went into both the middle and heavyweight classes and came out easily victorious in each one. The wrestling between Anderson and Stelk was probably the most interesting and exciting part of all the minor point getters.

Flag Rush Exciting.

The sophomores lost the flag rush because they lacked the numbers of the freshmen. They were outnumbered three to one and could not withstand the onslaught of the new men. However, they put up a good battle and gave a good deal of inconvenience to the freshmen when they started for the flag, which was at the top of a big pole set upright in the center of the athletic field.

A favorite method of the invaders was to grasp one sophomore between two freshies and gently plant him flat on the ground. Then the problem was to keep him there, a rather difficult matter as the second year men had had more experience in the gentle art of rough-house. This procedure was kept up until the flag was hauled down.

After the battle the field was found to be strewn with caps, hats, shirt sleeves, and sundry pieces of wearing apparel. The great question after the war was "Where are my shoes?" Several members of both classes losing one or both shoes.

THIRD IN STOCK JUDGING

NEBRASKA TEAM PLACES IN CHI-CAGO DAIRY SHOW CONTEST.

Nebraska Dairy Team fourth. The University of Nebraska dairy judging team won fourth place in the annual Chicago Dairy Show contest, held at Chicago last Friday and Saturday. Nebraska always makes a good showing, having beaten all of her neighboring states.

R. K. Warner was third in Ayrshire judging, A. H. Beckhoff was third in Jersey judging, and W. G. Rupert, the third member of the team, received honorable mention. The boys returned Sunday afternoon much profited by their experiences.

NEBRASKANS ARE HONORED

POUND AND COSTIGAN ELECTED TO OFFICE IN LAW SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Law students will be pleased to note that distinction has been won by two former scions of the Law School. At a recent meeting of the Association of American Law Schools, Dr. Roscoe Pound was elected president, and Professor George P. Costigan, Jr., secretary of that organization.

Did Brilliant Work Here.

Dr. Pound is now a member of the Harvard University law faculty and Professor Costigan is connected with the Northwestern Law School. Both of these men will be remembered for their brilliant work at Nebraska, especially Dr. Pound, who is essentially a Nebraska product.

ONE STUDENT NOW OUT

PROFESSOR ENBERG AND DELIN-QUENCY COMMITTEE HARD AT WORK.

One student has already been suspended from the University, and four more are liable to be, for failure to respond to Prof. C. C. Enberg's invitations to call on the delinquency committee. Another student has been advised to quit school on account of low scholastic standing, and other students are in peril of receiving similar advice, if not definite instructions to that effect, from the secretary of the delinquency committee. Inattention to delinquency notices, and low standing in classes will soon be dealt with summarily, according to Prof. Enberg, and a decided thinning out of classes may result.
