NEBRASKA BASKET-BALL PROSPECTS PROMISING

CANDIDATES FOR VARSITY SQUAD GET IN SHAPE FOR SEASON.

FOUR OLD "N" MEN ARE BACK

Coach Stiehm to Begin Work Soon—
Schedule of the Games Not Yet Made.

Basketball prospects for the coming season at the University of Nebraska loom up brighter than for years past with five old "N" men back in the squad and a goodly turnout of new men of experience and ability. The Cornhusker's chances of winning the Missouri Valley basketball look more real than in several former seasons.

Captain Owen Frank, Sam Carrier, Owens, Hiltner, Gibson, are the "N" men who will be back on the job and from last year's freshmen players there are Hanzlich, Nagl, Hoffman, Underwood, Trimble, Martin, Sieman, Striker and Hascall, who will be on the floor competing for places on the Cornhusker five.

Stiehm to Coach.

"Jumbo" Stiehm, who is now proving his coaching ability with the football squad, and who was for four years star player of the Wisconsin basketball team and who is an all-Western center in the sport, will try and whip this material into a quintet of basket tossers which will burn up things in the Valley in the coming winter.

The schedule of games to be played is not formed as yet, but Coach Stiehm states that it is under way. Two games will be played with each of the conference schools, the first game being played after January 1, according to the rulings of the conference.

Many of the enthusiasts of the game are out already practicing on the floor each night, and after Thanksgiving regular practice under the coach will be taken up.

DIG UP, SENIORS

A Committee is Now at Work to Clear Off Class Deficit.

The committee appointed last year to collect a 25-cent assessment levied on the seniors to pay off the senior class debt will begin to make the collection this week. Seniors are urged by their officers to help clear this debt, which amounts to about $36, and which is mostly due for space in the Cornhusker.

The committee consists of Dale Boyles, Rex Davies and Verna Hyder.

PUBLICATION BOARD ELECT

ASSOCIATE EDITOR NEEDED FOR RAG—MAYBE CORNHUSKER CREDITS.

The student publication board will hold a special meeting next Saturday to elect an associate editor for the Daily Nebraskan. Ernest O. Graves, who was elected to this position last spring, resigned a short time ago and his successor is to be chosen Saturday. F. C. McConnell is at present the only associate editor and the rules of the board provide for two associates.

Must Be Competent.

The man to be elected to this position may or may not have had newspaper experience. The chief requisite, according to one of the members of the board, is that the man be competent to assist the other editors.

Credit for Book Editors.

The proposal to grant college credits to the editors of the Cornhusker will also come up for consideration. Strong appeals are being made to get credits for the editors of the annual. An auditing committee will also be selected to represent the board in accounting the books of the various publications.

CHANGE IN VACATION DATES

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS PETITION FOR A CHANGE IN PRESENT SCHEDULE.

In order to avoid traveling on New Years day, a number of University students intend to petition for a change in the dates of the Christmas vacation. As the calendar is now arranged classes end December 20 and begin again on January 2, which would require all students living out in the state to travel on New Years day, which they do not care to do. If changed, vacation will begin and end one day later, in this way allowing everybody to enjoy their New Years holiday without traveling back to school on that day.

CORNHUSKERS TIED BY LIGHTER AMES TEAM

SHONKA'S MEN NOT IN FORM AND COULD NOT WIN.

ERNEST FRANK MAKES TOUCHDOWN

Burge, Ames' Fullback, Kicks Two Goals From Placement and Ties Game.

After scoring, almost without effort, in the first four minutes of play, two drop kicks by Fullback Burge of Ames held Nebraska to a tie score on the Iowa Aggie campus last Saturday.

It was a game full of most amazing plays and misplays, in which the former life and dash of the Cornhusker backs and forwards was entirely lacking.

Were Stale.

To those who have seen the previous exhibitions of the team this season, it seemed impossible that the same team was playing. Fumbles of punts and passes and forward passes, together with the failure of the Cornhuskers to follow the ball as heretofore, gave Ames the ball several times within dangerous territory, and twice Burge put the pigskin squarely between the posts, from the twenty-three and thirty-seven yard lines, respectively. Only once thereafter were the Aggies able to work the ball into our half of the field sufficiently close to attempt a goal and that try fell far short.

Score Easily.

Nebraska's touchdown was made in the first four minutes of play, after Chauner recovered an onside kick. Ernie Frank carried the ball over on a fake pass from Jerry Warner and Owen kicked goal. Both Burge's kicks were from placement and both came in the first quarter.

Ames was unable to gain consistently and seemed weak on offense, although Harte and Hurst occasionally slipped through two or three tacklers for good distances. Nebraska was weak on the offense, the backs failing to show anything like the class displayed heretofore.

Purdy a Star.

Purdy alone was playing his game, and was the real star. He fought like a fiend, and save for one or two exceptions, was good for first down every time he carried the ball.

Chauner and Lofgren, especially the latter, played wonderful defensive games. Shonka was a terror both on offense and defense, and was easily the best man on the field, until he was ruled off after protest by the head-linesman for unnecessary roughness.

Hurst Ames' Best.

Quarterback Hurst was Ames' star, his ability to return punts, and his quickness to seize the two opportunities to score, entitled him to the honors. The Ames team played hard, clean football all the time, in fact, put up a wonderful game, considering the great odds with which they were contending.
