NEBRASKA HUMBLER DOANE IN BLINDING BLIZZARD

The Cretans came to Lincoln last Saturday and went home after playing freeze out for over an hour. Nebraska put them away with a score of 27 to 0.

The game was certainly one of the coldest ever played upon Nebraska field. The cold was so intense that even the mental faculties of the players were dulled, but the game was one of the best played games seen this year. It was marked by absence of fumbling and "beefs."

The chilliness of the day prevented any Nebraska girls from showing up through about twenty-five Doane co-ed rooters managed to stick the squabble through. The rest of the rooting bunch was as bad a frost as the day.

Oklahoma Trims Kansas.

Oklahoma trimmed the Kansas eleven 3 to 0 last Saturday. Can Nebraska better that score? Nebraska can, but she wants her rooters along to help. The rooting band of the Cornhuskers will make a mark in Kansas that will be there for years.

Palladians Meet.

The Palladian Literary Society was entertained Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Frost, alumni members, at their home on Thirty-first and Hol-drege streets. Entertainment was furnished in the form of clever games representing or referring to animals. Also each person was given the name of an animal and partners were found by matching broken animal cookies. A jolly good time is reported.

Today he will explain reasons for annexing Morocco, and will discuss the probable effects of the war upon the equilibrium of Europe and the world.

John Bull Takes Off His Cap

to the United States. The English know how to make good caps. They know how to weave good cloths, too—know better than we do. So we import their cloths—but make our own caps—put more go, swagger and jauntiness in than the English thought possible.

That's why John Bull takes off his cap to the one American cap that's better than his—the HEIDCAP.

1,000 first class dealers in America sell HEIDCAPS—and some in England.
