AN OBJECT LESSON.
 As an object lesson in true college spirit—the sort that means everything to college life and collegiate athletics, we reprint an editorial from the Daily Princetonian.
 We need say no more—it speaks for itself:
A Victory for Dartmouth.
 "Anyone who witnessed the game Saturday could not fail to have been impressed by the sportsmanlike spirit with which the Dartmouth contingent accepted the ruling of the officials and with it a defeat which they had no reason to expect. For with all due credit to the Princeton team, we cannot say that we deserved to win. On the defense the two teams were nearly equal, but on the offense Dartmouth had better interference for the backs, and although they were not enough better to warrant their winning, they at least certainly did not deserve to have the game go against them.

 And when defeat was administered by means of a play that was nothing short of weird, it seems almost the height of injustice. We can best conceive of the feelings which the Dartmouth supporters must have had if we imagine having lost the Harvard game through a similar circumstance, and had we on our part accepted one week ago on a technicality, without a murmur, we should indeed have something of which to boast.
 We cannot honestly say that we regret having won the game. But we do regret very much that we could not win the game as a game should be won, and we again make an acknowledgement of one of the best exhibitions of sportsmanship that we have seen in some time. And this is, incidentally, not only our own personal opinion, but the opinion of the whole Princeton undergraduate body."
Superintendents to Meet.
 The dates for the opening of the School of Superintendence and the Summer Session of the University have been definitely set. The School of Superintendence will start June 10, and will close the same day that registration for the Summer Session commences, June 14. Class work in the Summer Session will begin June 17 and will continue until August 17.

promote better friendship and spirit among themselves. Last night a folk dance was held in the girls' gym, which was well attended. All sophomore girls were invited to come and bring a friend. The evening was spent in dancing. Light refreshments were served.
