at many schools. The students are not housed together in dormitories, but are scattered all over the city of Lincoln. "Nebraska Spirit" must be kept at a high pitch to overcome this obstacle. We are ahead of the other schools in the Missouri Valley in many other things. Why should we not lead in school spirit and rooting? I believe that we are doing this.

We hear it said, here and there, that Nebraska has no yells. Do you suppose that a Nebraska grad, returning to his alma mater to witness a gridiron contest would believe that he was once more at Nebraska if he did not hear old No. 1 peal forth from the bleachers? That yell has become a part of the school itself. We do not want too many yells. It is hard to perfect a large number of yells and I believe that if we concentrate our efforts on the yells we now have that they will prove in the future, as they have in the past, very effective. Sometime in the future we may be given a better yell, but in the meantime we should do our best with what we have.

The argument is sometimes advanced that co-education kills college spirit. In my opinion, this has been successfully refuted at Nebraska. This has been accomplished by giving the co-eds a section of the grandstand to themselves, and thus urging them to attend athletic contests. The spirit among the co-eds here this year has been great. It has urged the men to make greater efforts and thus has strengthened the spirit of the whole school.

In conclusion I will say that I believe that the effectiveness of the rooting depends to no small extent upon the cheer-leader. Cheer-leading is an art that some men are especially adapted for while others are not. I do not believe that in the past, this year among the others, that the most capable men have always been chosen for this position. They have been chosen by the Innocents of the preceding year, and while these men have chosen the junior or juniors that they felt most fitted for the position, they have been compelled to choose men who were untried. I would suggest Caps?

As much difference in caps as in men.

Breeding, individuality and style belong to a Heidcap—just as they do to the men who wear them.

A cheap cap couldn't look, nor wear, like a Heidcap any more than a hobo could look, nor wear, like a gentleman.
