A. A. REED,
Secretary.

We have all decided to study hard every night between now and examination time—and now we are pleased to take a test each day in place of the finals. Great world, isn't it?

Cheer up, it might be worse. Yesterday the weather man gave us a chance to put our nose out of doors without having it frostbitten.

EVERETT M. JENKS.

It is with sincere sorrow that the Daily Nebraskan publishes in its columns an account of the untimely death of Everett M. Jenks, a member of the junior law class. He was a diligent and conscientious student whose untiring and earnest efforts in pursuit of a chosen subject won for him the respect and warmest affection of his friends.

We take this opportunity to express on behalf of his friends and classmates our heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved family, and the conviction that in his death we as well as they have lost a friend worthy of esteem.

OUR APOLOGY.

It is truly discouraging. After the over-taxed staff of the "Rag" had labored all Tuesday afternoon and far into the night in order to put a paper before the reading public; after they had lost copy, re-read and slashed the rest, examined the proof and taken the remainder meekly to the printing office, the "make-up man" brought all to nought.

The advantages of one o'clock drill were introduced in the discussion of sterilized water, the opinions of Professor Engburg were substituted for the plans of Miss Gittings as to the girls' locker room—in fact, chaos prevailed. Perhaps the only advantage in this Chinese arrangement of the reading matter lay in its novelty.

In lieu of the constant grumbling which followed the novelty, however, the staff has decided that such a scheme will be hereafter avoided as far as possible.

GRADUATE SCHOOL MEETS.

Organization of One Hundred Members Will Be Formed in Chapel Hall Today.

The members of the graduate school of the University will hold a meeting this morning at 11:30 in the Chapel.

The purpose of this meeting is the perfecting of the organization, which is at present rather loose. At a banquet recently held by the graduate students over fifty attended, and since there are nearly one hundred and fifty in the entire class, a powerful organization is possible.

At this meeting the advisability of engaging space in the Cornhusker will also be discussed.

The Hyde Printery, 1331 P St., up-to-date printing of all kinds.

MANDOLIN CLUB ELECTS.

Officers Chosen and Work Begun on Concert Program.

The University Mandolin Club held its election of officers last night. R. P. Thomas was chosen president; E. H. Young, vice-president, and J. D. Neal, librarian.

The services of Francis Potter of Omaha have been secured at great expense to the University. He is very enthusiastic over the prospects. Work is being done on the concert program.

Two guitar players and two banjo players are all that are needed to make the organization perfect.
