

BASKET TOSSERS OFF ON FIRST BIG TRIP

This morning the basketball team started on the first trip of the year. They left at 6:45 this morning for the Jayhawk agricultural lands to meet the quintet at the Lawrence Farm.

They will reach Manhattan at 12:30, barring snow drifts en route. The Sunflower farmers have run out of coal and there is neither heat nor light in the gymnasium. So, after a hasty visit to the pie counter, Coach Stiehm will gather his husky warriors into their overcoats and send them on the floor at 2:30 in the afternoon. This after dinner game will be quite an ovation.

The men who will heed the call of the coach are Captain Frank, Carrier, Haskell, Gibson, Hiltner, Stryker, and Nagle.

After the skirmish with the Aggies the Cornhusker five will sweep down on the university of the grand old state of Kansas. At Lawrence they will play both Friday and Saturday nights. All of the games are expected to be close.

AG. SOCIETY AT TEMPLE

NEBRASKA FARMERS ATTEND LECTURES BY GOOD SPEAKERS.

A large crowd of the visiting delegates to the Nebraska Agricultural Society met at the Temple last night.

Mr. W. Atwell gave a lecture on "The Story of My Farm Boys."

Another address was given by Miss McKay on "Home Economics as Related to Farm Life."

A male quartette provided good musical numbers.

STUDENTS HELD UP.

Boyles and Somerville Stuck for Chew of Tobacco.

D. S. Boyles and W. M. Somerville were the principals in a comedy that to them was anything but a comedy. On the night of the Dramatic Club play they came off the stage and started home.

As they went up the dark street a rough voice ordered "Hands up," and the actors lost no time in doing so.

"Have you got a chew of tobacco?" came from the hold-up man. Upon a negative answer, he put his scissors, which by this time looked like a "gat" to the stuck-ups, into his pocket and walked down the street singing carols of glee.

Despite the pledges of secrecy, the story leaked out and the old story of you ain't no robber is fighting word to the victims of the wave of crime.

FRESHMAN BASKET-BALL SQUAD THINNED OUT

The freshman basketball squad is suffering from a number of things, the principal one being the absence of players. Cold weather has undoubtedly affected a number of the men, but two of the centers have been laid up, Bauman with a bruised ankle and Finley with the gripe.

When the weather becomes anything but warm the bunch got a bad attack of cold feet when it came to risking an ear in the cold. "Men who expect to make next year's 'varsity,'" said Coach Reynolds, "should turn out this year, for their work is watched and will be counted when they show up at practice next year."
