SATURDAY, JANUARY 27, 1912

The following statement, issued from the Chancellor's Office, is being sent to all the newspapers in the state:

False reports have been circulated in regard to typhoid conditions among students of the University.

There have been about thirty-five cases; one death has occurred. The use of the N street well, the supposed source of contamination, has been discontinued.

All water is now treated with hypochlorite, rendering it practically free from bacteria.

this view if that is your desire and we agree with you to a certain extent. However, we do think that some of the amateur regulations are absurd. For instance, where a college man cannot play in any baseball game where admission is charged; where he cannot play in any game in which there are players who receive pay for their service, and where he cannot play on any other team except the home team.

Nebraska is always willing to listen to reason and will act accordingly whenever a reasonable solution of this baseball problem is produced, but we do not feel that it is our duty as a member of the Missouri Valley Con-

Very few new cases are being reported in the city.

At no time has the percentage of people in the city ill with the disease been as great as in most of the smaller places in the country where typhoid is an epidemic.

The total number of University students stricken is less than one per cent of the total registration.

S. AVERY,
 January 25th, 1912. Chancellor.

THANKS KINDLY.

In a set of resolutions adopted by the Michigan Alumni Association of the Missouri Valley, at a meeting held at the University Club of Omaha, January 12, the following paragraph appeared: "Whereas, Nebraska made a most creditable showing in said game," referring to the Nebraska-Michigan game. Thank you, again.

SUMMER BASEBALL.

Our attention has been called to a well-written article which recently appeared on the summer baseball problem in The Daily Kansan. This article seems to infer that the present amateur baseball regulations regarding college men who have played during the summer is all right. It further seems to infer that other colleges of the Missouri Valley Conference are able to look at it in the way Kansas does, and that it should be the position of Kansas to act as a kind of a beacon-light to steer us into the way of thinking that the present amateur baseball rules can easily be lived up to.

All right, Mr. Kansas, you may take ference to strive for anything that is so absurd as some of the restrictions on college baseball players as now can be found among the Conference rulings. We want summer baseball as badly as any other school and we are willing to co-operate with other colleges in the Conference to get a square deal. But if you, Kansas, can show us how we can play baseball bearing the burden of the present amateur rulings, we are certainly willing to be shown.

Cooking Class Serves.

Four members of the Domestic Science department's second year class in Cooking served a model breakfast in the department's rooms at the Farm yesterday.

The hostesses were the Misses Layton, Liebers and Larsen; Miss Richards acted as critic, and Miss Zimmers as guest.

Typhoid Passing at Farm.

The typhoid epidemic which invaded the State Farm to the sorrow of at least two students, seems to be going no further in its ravages. No more are reported sick and all those ill are convalescent.
