ALUMNI RETURNING FOR JUNIOR PROM TONIGHT

FORMAL DANCE PROMISES TO BE SUCCESS FROM EVERY STANDPOINT.

LIMITED NUMBER OF COUPLES

All Tickets Sold Far in Advance and Profitable Financial Outcome Is Assured.

The Junior Prom promises to be perhaps the most successful dance of the season both from the viewpoint of the committee in charge of the finances and from that of the dancers. It comes as a pleasant climax to the pleasures of Junior week, this being the anniversary of the precedent set by the Junior class of last year in setting apart a week devoted to events perpetrated wholly by that class.

That the Prom of this year will not be a financial burden on the class is evidenced by the fact that every ticket was sold at the beginning of the week. The committee is putting forth every effort to fulfill the expectations of the participants, and it is definitely stated by Chairman Art May that the dance will be limited to about one hundred couples.

THIS ADVERTISING PAID

BUT WASN'T IT MEANT TO DECEIVE THE SORORITY GIRLS IN THAT MANNER?

Does advertising have an effect upon the co-ed? There is one sort that does, and it is not the bill-on-the-fence sort, nor the sort that comes in her afternoon mail and gives her a pleasant little flutter—until she discovers what it is. A certain shoe store in town has solved the problem.

A recent morning there was delivered to each sorority house in town a large box of magnificent carnations. If the piqued curiosity and excited exclamations while the donor's card was being searched out is any indication of the impression made, that shoe store has a thriving trade assured for the rest of the year.

A casual observation of the downtown crowd that afternoon would have shown a predominance of co-eds with a pink carnation on her muff and shiny pair of new shoes on her feet.

HOW WOMEN MAY HELP

DEAN BURNETT SPEAKS ON PRACTICAL PLANS FOR WORK IN RURAL COMMUNITIES.

Dean Burnett returned to Lincoln in time to deliver, Thursday afternoon, the first of a series of lectures on practical plans for work in rural communities.

Every organization stands or falls, he said, upon its ability to benefit the community; therefore, the numerous churches in small towns should unite and work together. Improvements may also be brought about through the schools, in social, intellectual and industrial conditions, for the drifting to the city from the country is caused by lack of social and industrial life. He mentioned the value of women's clubs in arousing local pride and leading reform movements. Dean Burnett concluded his talk by telling of the need in rural communities of women with qualities of leadership and with "vision."

The second lecture will be given next Thursday in the Y. W. C. A. rooms by Miss Howell on "Dramatic Possibilities."

A. S. M. E. Revived.

The local chapter of the student section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers reorganized Thursday night. There were about fifteen men present. B. Beckwith, '12, was elected president; W. H. Noelting, '12, secretary, and P. S. Toney, '12, treasurer. Speakers were selected for meetings to be held this semester. The next meeting will be held March 5, and will be a debate on the question "Closed vs. Open Feed Water Heaters for Power Plants." Berger and Foster will speak for the affirmative and Dales and Evans the negative.

To Fumigate Second-hand Book.

First, protect your face with a damp cloth. Then grasp the book firmly with tweezers and carry it over to within twenty-five feet of the Chemistry Hall. Drop the volume on the sward and run for your life.—Ex.

MEDICS TO VISIT OMAHA

ANNUAL TRIP TO CLINICAL END OF DEPARTMENT TO BE MADE SOON.

At a meeting of the Medical Society it was decided to make the annual trip to Omaha in the near future, probably in March, to inspect the clinical end of the Medical School.

The yearly visit is for the benefit of those who never have seen that part of the school, and also to show them the difference between the theoretical and practical side of medicine. The program is made out by the instructors for the morning clinics, which are generally held in a number of hospitals. Usually about twelve operations are to be seen at each hospital, and are so arranged that no two operations are of the same nature. During these clinical operations the operator explains fully the nature of the operation and why it was necessary.

The afternoon is spent in seeing Omaha and attending the theatres. Others visit relatives and friends, while some do shopping. The trip is beneficial to the medics, as this end of the department has no clinical facilities, or at least they are not of major character.

HOUSEHOLD ARTS CLUB ELECT

EDITH OHLSEN IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF GIRLS' ORGANIZATION—MISS EVANS TALKS.

Miss Haller and Miss Ryan were hostesses at the monthly meeting of the Household Arts Club, held at the Alpha Phi house, February 20. The following officers were elected for the semester: Edith Ohlsen, president; Eveline Johnson, vice-president; Ruth Haller, corresponding secretary; Grace Ryan, treasurer; Louise Guthrie, secretary.

New members elected to the club were Dora Kidd, Pattie Metzger, Leta Lynch, Matie Hall, Aurelia Scott, and Rena Howard.

Miss Eaves of the Department of Sociology talked to the club on social and economic topics of interest to the student of home economics.

The club accepted the invitation of Miss Johnson and Miss Lee to hold its next meeting at the Chi Omega house.

Alumni to Dine at St. Louis.

University of Nebraska alumni living in St. Louis are arranging for a dinner for the Nebraska alumni in attendance at the meeting of the department of superintendence of the National Educational Association. The meeting is to be held in St. Louis next week, and the dinner will be given at 5:30 p. m., Tuesday. There are thirty resident alumni in St. Louis. H. R. Tucker, '99, head of the department of history in the McKinley High School, is in charge of the plans. All Nebraska alumni who are planning to attend should communicate with him.

Raps University Politics.

In a recent criticism of university politics, the Daily Missourian says: "Debased city politicians would fire like saints when told of the intrigues a class goes to in selecting a few officers out of its 150 members."

DRAMATIC EFFORTS OF JUNIORS SUCCESSFUL

"THE ROYAL FAMILY" CLEVERLY PRESENTED BY THIRD YEAR MEN.

FLORENCE HOSTETLER IN STAR ROLE

Large Crowd Witnesses Play—Horseplay by Band Members a Marring Incident.

Not without flaws, but with clever in its presentation was "The Royal Family," the Junior class play given at the Oliver last night. The cast was a stronger one than is usually seen in class dramas and the costuming and scenic effects were unusually elaborate in their character.

The play, which was capable of much effective rendition, dealt with the love affairs of a princess in one of those George Barr McCutcheon lands of imagery. It offered roles for a large number of persons and engaged practically all of the dramatic talent of the Junior class.

Miss Hostetler's Clever Acting.

Without attempt at undeserved laudation, it can be said that Florence Hostetler's presentation of the role of the Princess Angela was worthy of highest praise. Miss Hostetler displayed her rare dramatic ability better than ever before in last night's play. Her's was a difficult part, one capable of both emotional and humor-out effect, and she met its ever exigency with a most natural ease and grace.

Louise Wyman's sense of humor interfered slightly with her very capable presentation of the role of the dowager queen of Arcadia. She found a bit of difficulty in repressing her laughter at times when laughter was anything but apropos. But all in all her acting was excellent.

Of the men characters, Otto Sinkie as Cardinal Casano, the adroit and scheming prelate, was quite the best. His work was the least affected and he exhibited at times dramatic ability of a high sort. Harry Coffee, as Victor, crown prince of Kurland, also merits no little praise, for his acting was of its usual high character.

Fred McConnell, on whom the financial success of the play as well as much of the dramatic success, depended, gave a most likable rendition of the role of the King of Arcadia.

Probably Financial Success.

A larger sized crowd than usually attends such University functions was present, and indications last night were that the affair was successful financially.

One marring incident was a bit of highly discreditable horseplay on the part of some members of the band during the second and third acts. While it not only affected the work of those appearing on the stage at the time, it was also noticeable in the audience, where sharp criticism of it was voiced.

The presence of the band in a musical way, however, was a part of the performance to be appreciated, for its several selections were entertaining and well rendered.
