Restricting Girls' Activities.

Because many of the woman students in the University of Wisconsin are not now taking an active interest in any of the women's societies, such as literary and debating, journalism, home economics, dramatic, music and athletics, and because these societies are being entirely managed by the same small group of girls who interest themselves in a great number of outside activities, clubs are restricted to the number of activities in which any one girl may engage.

For your orchestra call O. L. Jones. Auto L-8605.

We hold fast only to things which have proved their value—such as Kensington clothes.
