

LAW BUILDING COMMODIOUS

TO BE DEVOTED TO INTERESTS OF DEPARTMENT.

BUILDING WILL COST $85,000

Foundations and Iron Work Completed—Library Lighted by Sky Lights.

Nebraska's new law building has at last begun to show signs of the work that has been done upon it. The foundation is all completed and some of the iron studdings have been raised.

The dimensions of the building are sixty-three by one hundred and thirty-six feet, and will be three stories in height.

The first floor will be a general lecture room for the first year class with seats in tiers similar to the lecture room in Brace hall. The room will be large and roomy with plenty of ventilation and light.

On the second floor there will be several offices for the law faculty, and a good sized court room, where the law school trials will be held, and, in connection, a jury room. Due to the present arrangement the moot court trials are held in any one of the class rooms on the third floor of U. hall that might be available at that particular time. This makes it very discouraging for any great degree of interest to be taken in the moot courts, but when the laws are snugly settled in their new home, it is the general impression that more interest will be taken in these matters, which, after all, are very important in the study of law.

The third story of the law building will be entirely devoted to a law library. This room will have no windows on the sides, but will be lighted entirely by five large sky lights. This will make study for the laws much more satisfactory as there will be a good light from any angle of the room.

The building is to cost $85,000, exclusive of the furnishings. It is to be of vitrified brick and terra cotta. As all the floors will be of cement or composition, and the stairs of steel, the building will be entirely fire-proof.

CADETS MAKE DEPARTURE.

Leave for Camp Avery Yesterday Amid Music and Enthusiasm.

At exactly one o'clock yesterday afternoon the University cadet regiment left the armory on its first move toward the week's escapade in camp.

Attracted by the music and excitement a large crowd of co-eds and spectators gathered along the streets to view the imposing spectacle of two blocks of uniformed men marching to the rhythm of music as played by the University band. On their march to the station several guns were fired, much to the consternation of the civilians. Otherwise no incidents occurred on the way to the depot where the brave lads boarded the train for Camp Avery.

Judge—"Prisoner, have you anything further to add to your defense?"

Prisoner—"All that I ask you to consider, my lord, is the extreme youth of my counsel."

FACULTIES TO PLAY BASEBALL

City and Farm Campus Professors to Indulge in Commercial Sport.

The respective faculty teams of the city and State Farm campuses will meet this afternoon at 5 o'clock on Nebraska field. Both organizations have been practicing long and diligently, and both are confident of victory.

The following is the probable line-up of the University team. It is rumored that Coach Stehm and Doctor Clapp are ineligible under the Missouri Valley Conference rules, on account of professionalism, and a thorough investigation will be held before these players are allowed to participate.

City Campus Line-up.

Pitch, Reed; catch, Logan; first base, Stehm; second base, Reynolds; third base, Frankforter; shortstop, Williams (capt.); left field, Meyer; center field, Kryger; right field, Clapp.

Farm Campus Line-up.

Catch, Lewis; pitch, Pollock; first base, Rail; second base, Adkins; third base, Blish; shortstop, Lee; right field, Gritzner; left field, Gee; center field, Westgate.

Empire, Professor Barber.

Professor Hrbkova Lectures.

Prof. Sarka Hrbkova, department of Slavonic languages, gave an illustrated lecture last evening on "Slavonic Life," for the benefit of the Komensky club at Wilber, Neb. She returns to Lincoln this morning.

SPRING TRYOUTS FOR DEPARTERS

Professor Fogg Plans on Choosing Half of the Squad Before School Closes.

A spring try-out for those who desire to try for the debating squad will be held the latter part of this month. This announcement was made recently by Professor Fogg, head of the department of debating at the University. At this time fifteen members of next year's squad will be chosen, the rest to be selected in the fall.

This plan was adopted in order to accommodate some of the students who are unable to devote the opening weeks of school to the preparation of a case. A further benefit is that it starts the squad machinery at an early date, thus relieving some of the burdens that usually fall on the squad.

A preliminary bibliography has been prepared and the same may be had of Professor FOGG.

LAWS PROMINENT IN COLLEGE

HOLD IMPORTANT PLACES IN STUDENT ACTIVITIES.

CLAIM EIGHT 'VARSITY PLAYERS

Lack of Afternoon Classes Enables Lawyers to Enter University Contests.

To a great many people the College of Law is looked upon as being a graduate school, where its members are interested solely in the pursuit of their legal studies, maintaining an attitude of indifference toward the life and affairs of the University. But this idea is easily repelled when their attention is called to the activity of law students in the enterprises of the school and of their general prominence in all walks of student life.

The fact that law students are not confined to afternoon classes or suffer the inconveniences of laboratory assignments, makes it possible for them to indulge quite heavily in athletics. Of the sixteen men receiving football letters this season, eight of them were registered in the law college. This includes Captain Shonka. In this connection it is interesting to note that for the past four years the captain has been a law student. Of the ten basketball letter men, four hailed from the law school, while on the baseball squad they were so numerous as to be in the way.

On account of natural inclination it is not strange that the laws should compose the majority of the debating squad and team.

On the Daily Nebraskan staff the law students can claim this year, one editor, all of the associates, one managing editor, and two business managers.

In dramatics both the senior and junior, as well as the Kosmet club plays were managed by law students, in addition to several members of the college, assuming leading parts.

Of the thirteen members of the Society of Innocents, seven are law students. Two of the eight class presidents were law students.

Getting a Practice.

Getting a law practice is a great drama, sometimes comic, sometimes tragic; few cases and many sloughs of despond. The office is your stage, you the actor, and there are no crowded houses; but the one-man audience is watching you. So be sure you have the spittoon hidden, your unpaid bills in a drawer, law books lying about suggestively open, valise handy, a ready tongue speaking contemptuously of courts, a proud conversational swing, a readiness to speak of "grave constitutional questions" (but always speak slowly on this point); and lo, shortly you will reach your office in a limousine car, from whose sumptuous cushions you will be privileged to give your friends the soulless stare of modern life.—American Law Review.

German Club Meets.

The German club will meet tonight in U. 112. This will be an open meeting and all students who are taking German are urged to attend.
