

OPPOSES RECALL

DR. EDWIN MAXEY PRESENTS OBJECTIONS IN THE FORUM.

IMPEACHMENT GOOD REMEDY

Disbelieves in the Wisdom of Letting People Exercise Power Over Judiciary.

Dr. Edwin Maxey of the law faculty has placed the stamp of his disapproval upon the recall of the judiciary in a very forceful article published in the September number of the Forum, a magazine devoted to social and political problems. The doctor is an authority on legal matters, and his opinion upon this very live national question as well as legal one is being hailed by the "Progressive with the Brakes On" class as one more weight added. Briefly, the doctor insists that the science of government is a very practical one and must not be hampered by radical legislation.

He points out that the Constitution of the United States is calculated to place a limit upon the authority and power of a legislative body and to hold inviolate the rights and privileges of the minority against the passing whim of a momentary majority. Any legislation relative to the judiciary necessitates a constitutional amendment.

He points out that the greatest causes for the movement in favor of the judiciary recall have been the charges of corruption, relative either to the method of obtaining the office or conduct while in office, the delay of cases and the findings upon what seems to the uninitiated technical grounds and not substantial justice. But he says that we must consider the human element in the administration of justice and the unintentional leaning to the side of the corporate interests by the judiciary, who have, during their practicing years, been brought closer in contact with that class. And these men, notwithstanding their slight favoring of the corporations, are the most efficient and honorable men in the legal profession.

In reply to the statement that impeachment proceedings are not adequate, he asks the question, "Why is it not?" Impeachment of our judiciary has never been used to any extent because there has not been the demand for it and the recall would in like manner be shelved in the calmer deliberation of the people's judgment or if used as a threat would lead to the evil of deciding cases according to popular clamour which has been so effectively headed off by the certainty of tenure of office.

OBJECTS TO GLOBE SWIPING.

Electrician Points Out that Campus Lights Will Not Operate on City Current.

Yesterday a somewhat excited gentleman dashed into the Nebraskan office and spoke somewhat in this manner:

"Say, I wish to talk to you about the appropriation of electric light globes from the fixtures over the campus."

The editors hastily sought retreat behind the high-back desks, and the reporters, devoid of shelter, seized their hats and hurriedly made their departure. After a moment, when the editors realized that as yet no names had been mentioned, they began to breathe again, and the gentleman was asked to elucidate more clearly.

"Well, what I wished to say was this. You might state in the Nebraskan that when students get electric light globes out of the fixtures in the various buildings on the campus, and after they discover that the globes will not work on the city current, will they please bring them back?"

Perhaps a word of explanation is due here to save the students needless exertion. The campus circuit is 220 volts, while the city circuit is 110 volts. Therefore, the globes from the University only burn dimly on the lower voltage. It seems a shame, but we feel that everybody will have to purchase their bulbs in the future.

"OTHER SCHOOLS."

Princeton—The bonfire in honor of winning last year's baseball championship was held last week, after a parade of all the students over the campus.

Ohio State—The freshmen of the Ohio State University won the annual class rush held on the campus last week. They succeeded in carrying the cane to their goal in thirteen minutes.

Kansas—The number enrolled so far has passed the 2,000 mark. By the time all students are enrolled it is expected the number will be about 2,700.

Wabash—The sophomores won the annual color rush from the freshmen. Though outnumbered, they won the fight in half an hour.

Minnesota—A "talking match" has been decided upon to take the place of the freshman sophomore class fight. A man is to be selected from each class and the one who can put up the best line of talk wins.
