MEET AGGIES TODAY

PLAY FIRST STIFF GAME OF SEASON ON NEBRASKA FIELD.

COACHES NOT OVERCONFIDENT

Nebraska's Chances Have Gone Up, But Stiff Proposition Expected—Is Trial for Gopher Game.

Nebraska will meet the Kansas Aggies this afternoon in what will probably be one of the hardest games of the season. The team is confident of victory, but expect to fight all of the time. The coaches did not have anything to say last night about the game, except that it would be a fight from start to finish. The team will go into the game in fine physical condition with the exception of Pearson, the husky tackle, who will not be able to play out at all.

Last evening's practice was held in one corner of the field, for the High School lads were monopolizing the remaining portion, and they sure did root up the sod, too. If the sun comes out this morning the field will be in good shape this afternoon, otherwise it will be slippery and heavy. The game last night was very destructive to the field, for the grass was torn out and holes made in the soft earth.

No Overconfidence.

The practice the last week has been steady and hard. Nebraska's chances have gone up as the result of the showing made last Saturday, but it has not imbued the players with overconfidence. A stiff proposition is expected today, and if the Cornhuskers come out with flying colors the practice next week in preparation for Minnesota will be entered with a vim. The Gophers have been holding secret practice the last week in preparation for the conflict with the Cornhuskers next Saturday.

The following is the lineup which was given yesterday and will start the game this afternoon.

Employment Bureau Busy.

The employment bureau of the University Y. M. C. A. is kept more than busy filling the applications of students who want work for Saturdays and leisure hours. Over 200 have applied so far, and quite a large per cent of these have been provided with suitable employment.

JUPITER PLUVIUS WAXES WRATHY

COVERS CAMPUS WITH PUDDLES OF MUDDY AQUA AND BRINGS UP REPTILES FROM SOAKED CAVERNS.

Rain! Rain! Rain! Jupiter Pluvius (or is it Neptune), has indeed allowed his wrath to descend upon the city and on our beloved campus in particular. The very atmosphere is surcharged with the drizzling moisture which allows us no haven from its sogginess.

Deep puddles of the muddy aqua lie upon all sides so that the emerald-hued frogs croak from their dismal depths, and other heliotrope or cerulean-tinted reptiles of complex zoological names emerge from their subterranean caverns in the soaked earth, disputing our passage through their domains like veritable mythological monsters of antiquity.

The torrents continue to descend (as this is written), and the sun is obscured by low, overhanging clouds, necessitating the donning of "slickers" or "slip-ons" and high artics or gum boots. The co-eds even appear on the campus in subdued colors, and, forgetting their previous promises to stroll with ardent "fussers," run shrieking into the library to seek solace in study. One fair damsel had the audacity to venture upon the campus with a liver-colored bathing cap, with astonishing fringe on the edge, perched upon her shapely head. She is extremely foresighted, however, as we are all daily dreading the moment when we shall be forced to don bathing suits for protection against the flood.

Let the sun shine again in the old familiar way lest we forget the appearance of his smiling old countenance, and lest our grand old institution go silently floating out into Salt creek!

BASCOME HEADS JUNIOR LAWS

Elected in Close Contest with Keith—Two Honest Men Found to Collect Ballots.

When the laws are crooked they are crooked; when they are honest they are honest, as evidenced by the recent junior law election. Two aspirants for the presidential plum, Vernon Bascome and Fred Keith, announced their intention to run. Byrn Marcellus described the manly qualities and excellent standing of his candidate and placed him in nomination after which followed a prolonged demonstration.

When the tumult had subsided W. C. Schaper followed with a short but well-delivered nominating speech for his candidate. This demonstration lasted as long as the first, and the politicians began to look around for a "dark horse," but as none came galloping along the nominations were closed by motion of the candidates themselves.

The motion was then made and carried that there should be two really honest men elected to take up the ballots, and G. S. Brown and Guy Kiddoo were unanimously elected to these positions. Forty-nine votes were cast, Bascome receiving twenty-seven, and therefore he will shape the policy of that turbulent body for the coming semester.

LATIN CLUB ELECTS MEMBERS.

Thirteen Girls Chosen to Membership in Organization of Latin Students.

At the first regular meeting of the Latin Club the following were elected to membership: Nora Nelson, Hazel Shue, Ruth Lindley, Lorena Bixby, Edith Parrish, Katherine Cannell, Marjorie Lichtenwallner, Winifred Out-house, Ruth Hanford, Mina Maudlin, May Letham, Irma Blanden, Annabel Good, and Miss Gordon.

HOME OF LAWS GOING UP FAST

Contractor Now Pushing Work of Interior Finishing—Will Cost All of Appropriation.

The new law building, which is to be completed by December 1, according to contract is now being pushed rapidly through the extreme efforts of the contractors. Plastering on the first floor is well under headway and from now on the program will be finishing work.

Eighty-five thousand dollars has been appropriated and it is assumed that this building will eat up the entire amount. The first and second floors are to be equipped with instructors' offices, class rooms, and a moot court room. The third floor will be entirely devoted to the library. Skylights are to be used instead of the ordinary windows.

Komensky Club Meets.

There will be a meeting of the Komensky Club this evening at 1439 R street, the clubhouse of the girl members, taking the form of a social in honor of Miss Eva Ptack, U. of N., 512. This is the second meeting of the year, the first having been held last Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Janouch, at which a literary program was mapped out for the ensuing year, and the following officers were installed: President, Joseph B. Kuska; vice president, Joseph Formanek; secretary, Mildred Cerny; treasurer, Thomas Stibal.

Sophomore Meeting.

There will be a sophomore class meeting Tuesday at 11:30 in the Temple. The minor officers will be elected at this meeting and candidates should give their names to the Registrar to make sure they are eligible to hold office.

AG SCHOOL STARTS

REGISTRATION IN SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE BEGINS MONDAY.

WILL PASS LAST YEAR'S MARK

But Few Changes in Teaching Force—Activities in Athletics and Band Starting With a Vim Among Farm Students.

Registration at the University Farm starts Monday morning and the machinery of the agricultural school is now ready for its six months of routine work. Under the direction of Principal Bradford the work of assembling the instructors, providing school supplies and answering inquiries from over the state has been going on for several weeks, so that now everything is in running order.

Registration will continue through Tuesday and possibly Wednesday, and classes will begin Wednesday or Thursday, according to the heaviness of the registration. New and old students have been arriving for the last few days, and the prospects for a large registration are good.

Credit for Hunter.

Correspondence from new students indicates that the hope for an increased enrollment is justifiable. The crops throughout the state have been good, and the only reason for many staying away could be the horse disease which swept the state. However, the prospects indicate no decreased registration with this as the cause. Principal Bradford gives the credit for the large interest taken in the school this fall to the efficient advertising of ex-Superintendent Hunter.

There are a few changes in the teaching force this year. Mr. E. W. Smith, former principal of schools at Grafton, is the new instructor in physics. The new department of manual training will be in charge of Mr. R. W. Eaton, who comes to the Farm from Geneva, where he was superintendent of schools.

Student Work Begins.

Association work at the Farm commences next week, and the usual preparations are being made to take care of new students. Arnold, who is president of the local department, is also secretary of the State Farm branch, and will be in active command at that place.

Other student activities are already looming up, football being the one of most vital interest at present. A coach will be secured during the week. On account of the shortness of the Farm term, basketball is the feature of the year and work on it will start soon. A School of Agriculture cadet band is to be organized with the opening of school, under the direction of Mr. Cornell, leader of the University band.
