LIBRARY SECURES OLD BOOKS

Two Philosophical Works of Ficino, Printed in 1561 and in Fine Condition, Added to Library Shelves.

Two very old books have recently been received at the library which will take the place of the former "oldest inhabitant" and claim that place for themselves. They are two volumes of the complete philosophical works of Ficino, an Italian philosopher, and were printed in the year 1561 at Basee, Switzerland.

These books are now the oldest books on the library shelves, despite which fact they are in an excellent state of preservation. They are printed in Latin and the leaves are still in good shape, an indication that they did not go through the hands of any University student before coming to their last resting place. The binding is in parchment, but of more recent date.

It was not learned what sum the library paid for these books, but a good price was undoubtedly asked for them, as they are a valuable addition to the already costly collection of books in the library. —L. H.

SCRIBES TASTE OF HIGH LIFE

Male Force of "Rag" Visits Orpheum and Folsom for One Carefree Evening—Rag Hop a New Crimp.

To show their highly developed aesthetic temperaments, the entire male force of the Daily Nebraskan "staggered" it to the Orpheum last evening. There, comfortably ensconced in the upholstered seats, the highbrows, unbending their dignity so that they resembled ordinary mortals, enjoyed all of the stunts of "vodevill" from A to G, applauding loudly at each manifestation of classic art. The various vaudevillians realizing that they had a more than usually critical audience, quite surpassed themselves in their efforts to please the embryo Greeleys.

As the "movies" began their rapid flight the Rag men realized that the "show was out" and were next seen seated under the bright lights in Folsom's Cafe. Here they partook of a tempting repast of rare vlands ranging from pate de foi gras and lobster salad to "hamburgers with onions" and dill pickles.

The banquet over, certain extemporaneous speeches of the editors were endured by the patient scribes on account of the fact that it was disclosed early in the evening that the "show and eats were on the editors."

A "Rag hop" was planned for December 7, unless further matters make a change in the date advisable.

Then as the evening had grown out of its infancy and was becoming quite decrepit in its second childhood, the party broke up with visions of future spreads before them.

Experiment at Farm.

Last week the animal husbandary department purchased on the South Omaha market 48 head of 900 pound 2-year-old steers which are to be used in an experiment in comparison of silage rations.
