

PREDICT STIFF BATTLE

CORNHUSEKER FIVE EXPECT FIERCE SCRIMMAGE WITH THE COYOTES.

BEAR STORIES FROM WESLEYAN

According to Reports from Methodist School Nebraska Will Be Hard Pressed Because of Strange Floor.

According to Wesleyan posters the basketball game Friday night is going to be a "Cornhusking Bee" for the Coyotes. They have good grounds for their assertion because the game is to be played on their home floor which resembles a dry goods box and on which no out of bounds are recognized. This will hamper the Cornhuskers considerably on account of their being used to large floor and depending to a certain extent upon out of bounds plays. The 'varsity, however, have been practicing with no out of bounds on the "gym" floor.

Coach Stehm's men are working their hardest in anticipation of the stiff games which still remain on the schedule. Every one of these games will require the best that the men have in them. On Saturday the 15th the Kansas Aggies will play at Lincoln. Last year the Aggies were defeated by only one point. Nebraska was three baskets behind in the last few minutes of play and it was only by the fastest kind of playing that they managed to win the game.

On the 16th the team will make their trip through Iowa which will include games with Ames and Drake, following this Ames will play two games at Lincoln. All these are conference championship games.

The whole squad is showing a decided improvement over last week's playing. Les Hyde especially is developing into a fast man and C. B. Myers, who has up to this time been ineffectual is being tried out at forward and will be given a chance at either Haskell's or Underwood's place on Friday night. This is Myer's first attempt at basketball in this school but he has a very good reputation.
