

GERMAN DRAMATIC CLUB PLAY Y. W. C. A. LECTURES

"Die Journalisten" To Be Given March 7 In the Temple Theatre.

TWENTY STUDENTS IN CAST

The second annual German play given by the University German Dramatic Club will be presented in the Temple Theatre, March 7.

The play, Freytag's "Die Journalisten," needs no introduction to German students. It is now being studied by classes in the University, and this has created a great deal of interest in it. It is one of the greatest German productions put on the stage here for the last five years. The play is being coached by Miss Heppner, who attended several presentations of it last summer while in Germany.

WANTED TO SEE FREAK FELINE

Some Doubt Veracity Of Last Week's Cat Story.—D. G. White Authority On Subject.

Fifteen people with caps, green, surmounted by white, visited the museum last week in search of a five headed cat. At various times during "Junior" week Professor Barbour was interrupted from his office work by members of the green toque order who bobbed their heads into the room bent on finding out the whereabouts of a certain feline said to have one hundred claws, twenty legs, and five heads. Owing to the recent date that the creature was received Professor Barbour was unable to satisfy the curious ones. They may be referred for correct information to the museum assistant, D. White, who will tell them all about it.

Those inclined to grin would do well to visit the museum themselves. An animal, known as the sea lily is one of the late acquisitions. Mathematicians should be especially interested in this inhabitant of the deep seas. It is called Geometricus, as its head is built up entirely of equilateral triangles.
