

MORE TRACK MEN NEEDED

BIG OPPORTUNITY FOR HONOR AND DISTINCTION OPEN TO YOUTHFUL MERCURIES.

NOT MANY VETS SHOWING UP

Last Years Team Members Are Sadly Negative Although Number Expected Out Before Long.

Never before, according to Coach Reed has there been such a dearth of veterans as candidates for the Cornhusker track team, and never before has there been such a good chance for new men to make good. Of last years squad only four veterans, Lindstrum, Beaver, Racely and Reavis, have returned this year to preserve Nebraska's reputation on the cinder path. Coach Reed feels, however, that a good team can be developed if only the students will come out and try for the squad.

The best track men Nebraska has ever had were men with no previous experience on the track when they entered college. The wonderful records of Anderson, last year's captain and an Olympic athlete, as well as the records of practically all past stars show what can be done with material that is absolutely green. Nebraska has always been handicapped by the material she has had, and yet under the leadership of Dr. Clapp and of the men he has coached the Cornhuskers have always been among the foremost schools in the west, and has carried off the honors in most of the western meets. If this reputation is to be sustained, Coach Reed says that it is up to the students who have never donned a track suit. He maintains that always there is as good a team on the bleachers as there is on the field. Last year between eighty and ninety men were out for positions on the squad, and that number at least should turn out this season.

In the sprints this year at least two new men must be developed. Aside from Racely, last year's sprinter, Reese, Zumwinkle, Wherry and Bates may prove good men but at least six men are needed to take care of the 100, 220, 440, and the relays. In the half mile Clark looks like a comer, yet he will be in great need of a running mate. Kubik and McMasters are the most likely candidates for the mile and two mile events, but here also, at least six men are needed to make a winning squad.

Unknowns will have their great opportunity to break into athletes by trying out for the hurdles, where four men are required. Kruse will prove valuable here. He was Russel's running mate last year, and although he did not win his letter he showed exceptional ability. Lindstrum, one of the Varsity pole-vaulters will also work out in this event. He has had practically no experience but is a hard worker and learns easily.

The pole vault is worrying Coach Reed least of all. Lindstrum and Reavis, both veterans, are the best pair in the Valley. In the high jump however, new men will fill the position. Meyers, a York high school star, is a likely candidate, but so far no one has been uncovered capable of being his partner. Ross, Reese and Meyers will probably juggle the weights, but there is plenty of chance for some husky to win fame in this department. Reese also showed much ability last year as a freshman in the broad jump, but he is the only man with this specialty as Cronwell last year's broad jumper took his degree.

Coach Reed then, will have as a nucleus around which to build a track team, the following men: Racely, Reavis, Lindstrum, Beaver, Wherry, Ross, Kruse, Meyers, Reese, Zumwinkle, Bates and Clark, only twelve men, and yet twenty-four men are necessary to make up the personnel of a track team. There are three weeks yet before the tryouts which determine the members of the team. A captain will then be elected, as Captain Barney has been forced to leave school on account of the illness of his father. The Drake relay games will take place a week later, and five weeks from now will come the first dual meet of the season, when Ames will appear on the home field.
