Stupid Superstition Nearly Prevents Medics Banner Display

Why this awful discrimination against the medical students? Are we inferior to the noble engineers or the lowly Ag's.?

Why should we not be privileged to fly our emblem as well as these peo-

Only yesterday morning two of the most concientious students in the medical college mounted the stairs in University hall carrying reverently their most cherished flag, with visions of it soon unfurling itself over the campus. carrying the joyous news to the rest of the University that the medics were supreme this week. But alas we are not of the favored few. We must bow to the wishes of the janitor simply because our banner bore the insigna of the skull and cross bones. It would be necessary to seek elsewhere to hang our flag. Rather indignantly we sought the man higher up and only by dint of much persuasion were we reluctantly allowed the privilege we so much desired.

Is this just?

Is this because we are of the medical college and are to be discriminated against? Or is it because of a superstition on the part of a certain large janitor?

Verily-We shall come to our own.

Cyclone Swept City To Be Invaded By Local Medics

At 7:15 Wednesday morning the porter's call "All Aboard for Omaha" will be heeded by a motley crew of blooddthirsty medicine men only too anxious to relieve the suffering caused by the recent twisters that have blown in upon that modern Gomorrah, to use the words of Brother Scoville. At 9 o'clock the delegation will be met at Omaha by local physicians and students, and after being shown about the town in the locomobiles of the successful Nebraska graduates, their number will be divided by three, each division going respectively to the Wise, Methodist, and County Hospitals. Especially good clinics have been arranged for the budding vivisectionists at each of these repair shops.

the visitors has been satiated to such an extent that their binocular vision fails to project rightly the wondrous spectacles that confront them, will they be hurried to the new campus to inspect the recently erected Medical building, which will be occupied next year. This is ituated directly across the street from the Child Saving Institute where there will be an additional clinic held under the direction of Dr. McClanahan, Omaha's most celebrated specialist in children's diseases. The inspection of this * place will be of especial interest to the embryo physicians because of the possibility of its being turned into a college hospital.

From here the visitors, will be whirled to the umpty-umpth floor of the Woodmen of the World building to the Commercial Club rooms where dinner will be served. After experiencing that satisfied sensation under the apron, a number of interesting of Omaha's theatrical productions.

South Dakota Dashed Down to Defeat Before Onslaught of 'Huskers

On a field covered with mud, which made fast playing on impossibility, the South Dakota baseball team went down to defeat before the heavy hit ting Nebraska team by a one-sided score of 10 to 1. The game was called in the eighth inning to allow the Coyotes to catch a train.

The Cornbuskers started the scoring in the second inning when Harte planted one over the right field fence, with one man on a base. In the fifth Haskell also secured a homer with two men on base. In the sixth Rider was hit by a pitched ball but was forced out at second by Sheeks, who grounded one to Flory. Wernil the next man up knocked a two-base hit scoring Sheeks, giving the Coyotes their only tally.

The game was marked by the long hitting of the teams. The Covotes secured three two-baggers out of their five hits. Haskell, Harte and Towle hitting for extra bases on the local team.
