Fall Style Book Takes Place Among Standard Texts of Many Co-Eds

Yesterday's wet spell sounded the doom of the diaphanous skirt and other forms of light summer apparel utilized by the maidens of the University of Nebraska, according to those who know. With the coming of cooler weather the ratine suit and even the heavier serge appear to be coming into favor.

New fall styles will include the draped skirt, the semi-slit skirt, and the new suits of the extreme aesthetical style, so the buyer of one of the fashionable stores relates. University officials have not yet classed any of these with the tango or the bunny hug. If they continue to increase in favor it is possible that a general demand will be made for a return to the good old styles, along with the dances of the "old school."

KANSAS FOOTBALL CAPTAIN WILL NOT RETURN THIS YEAR

A little gloom was cast on Kansas football prospects when it was announced that Capt. Willis K. Bramwell would not return this fall. Bramwell was the star center on last year's eleven and his absence will make it necessary for Coach Mosse to find another man for the pivotal position in short order. William Weidlein, tackle and place kicker, has been elected captain in place of Bramwell. The Kansans have a good squad out and a large number of veterans and the preliminary dope states that they will be stronger than last year.

MISSOURI PROSPECTS ARE GOOD FOR 1913 FOOTBALL

With forty men out every night, the prospects for a good team at the University of Missouri this fall look very encouraging. Eight of the forty are "M" men, and included in the squad are the members of the star freshman squad of last year. Missouri does not open her schedule until two weeks from today, when she meets Drury College.

The Tigers will again be coached by Brewer, last year's mentor. He has been laid up for the last week with a lame foot, but will soon be able to take active charge again.

The University of Denver has seventy-six students entered in a Saturday College for Teachers. The graduates from this department go out into the public schools of Denver. Last year there were 340 graduates of the university and this college teaching in Denver, out of 979, the total number teaching in the public schools there.

Maurice McLaughlin, the phenomenal star of the lawn tennis contests that have been staged this fall in eastern circles, met defeat on his home grounds in the Orange state by B. H. Botkin and C. E. Foley in doubles. McLaughlin played with Wickham Havens. They were defeated three straight sets.
