THE MID-WEST QUARTERLY.

In the belief that the university must eventually stand sponsor for the publication of intellectual essays, the Mid-West Quarterly has been put before the public by the University of Nebraska. Edited by Nebraska professors the first issue draws all its contributors from this institution. Its columns are open to any and all who would enter into critical discussions which because of their scholarly nature, would find no place in the publications of the day. It makes an appeal, therefore, to all sections of the country "even from the east" says the Nation in a review of the new magazine. The magazine will undoubtedly be subjected to criticism from the eastern as well as wester scholars. Its circulation will probably be limited at first, until the necessary recognition is accorded it. But once established the Quarterly should become a recognized forum for the critical theses of American scholars.

JACK BEST SAYS:

I'm mighty proud of the boys becoming champions this year, and hope to see them do the same next season. That is the only way; fight hard, be sociable one with another, and you will be sure to come out winners. They have the grit and backbone to back them, as illustrated by the good old "Fight to the finish, never give in." I hope every student can go home and sit down with his folks to Thanksgiving dinner.

JUNIORS DEFEAT SENIORS

Walk Away With Fourth-Year Men in a Drizzling Contest.

The juniors proved their supremacy over the seniors in one of the wildest games ever witnessed on the field of the mighty Cornhuskers. The game was played in a drizzle and the play was according. The score was 41 to 0.

The game was all that could be asked for, as both styles of football were di-played with more or less success. The juniors confined themselves to the old style game with the result that the score shows. Their play was sharp and showed the result of practice. The seniors on the other hand played the open game the result of which is also shown by the score. Only twice in the game did they trust themselves to the plunging game and then they were thrown for a loss. The sad part of it all was the fact that only one of the score of passes tried met with any luck at all.

The juniors counted in every period of the game. The touchdowns are credited to the whole back field, Meyers and Southwick being the individual stars, slipping through the writhing mass of seniors nearly at will. In the last period Southwick brought the howling multitude to their feet by a fifty yard run, being dragged to earth by the fleet footed Racely on the seniors ten yard line.

By virtue of the freshman victory of Monday, the juniors and the freshmen will play the championship game on next Tuesday afternoon. This game will be worth the money and will furnish those craving excitement and bloodshed plenty of material.

The teams lined up as follows:

Mr. F. E. Jennings, treasurer of the interclass football games, has come to my office and stated that all proceeds from tickets to these games are to be used for purchasing sweaters, jerseys or mackinaws for the winning team. Unless a protest is field at my office before December 1, 1913, the proceeds will be so used.
