

DEDICATE LAW COLLEGE

SPEAKERS OF NATIONAL REPUTATION WILL BE ON DEDICATION PROGRAM.

BUILDING COST OVER $100,000

Marks New Era for the Growth and Expansion of the University of Nebraska.

The Law College of the University of Nebraska will dedicate its new building on December 9, which is also the day set aside for the meeting of the board of regents. Besides two of the former deans of the college, there will be a number of other prominent speakers on the dedication program. The speakers will be Dr. Roscoe Pound, ex-dean of the law college, at present professor of law at Harvard college; George P. Costigan, Jr., ex-dean of the law college, at present in the law college of the University of Chicago; Regent C. S. Allen, Chief Justice Reese, Dean Hastings, present dean of the law college, and S. Miles Hayes, pastor of the Holy Trinity church of Lincoln. Dr. Pound is an authority on law and the author of a number of law books, many of which are used in colleges throughout the country. The junior law quartet will make its first public appearance this season at the dedication and will render a number of selections.

The new building, erected at a cost of $100,000, was finished last spring. It occupies a prominent position on the campus and is a fine addition to the university. It was first used last spring for final examinations and has been used for regular class work since the beginning of the present school year.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT NOW ON HALF TIME TILL SPRING

Indoor Drill but two Days a Week During Winter Months—Gallery and Theoretical Work.

The military work from December 1 until the 23rd of March, 1914, will consist of such instruction as can be followed inside. This will include mainly the theoretical side of drill in connection with many practical lectures and demonstrations of the working of the different departments of the military organizations in the university and elsewhere.

This program was announced on December 1 in General Orders No. 7 which goes into effect immediately. There will be only two drill days a week for each man. There will also be such demonstrations as the work of the medical corps in first aid, and other just as interesting subjects.

Companies A, B, C, D, and E will report for their instruction on Monday and Tuesday evenings of each week. Companies F, G, I, K, and M will report on Wednesday and Thursday. Officers and non-commissioned officers drilling for two hours' credit will report all four nights.

A nine-day compulsory course in drill regulations, followed by a written examination, will be the program for the majority of the companies. Failure to pass the examination will result in a condition in the semester's work.

Gallery practice and Butt's Manual will be other forms of entertainment provided.

Rifle Team Thrown Open to All Student Competition This Year

After December 1, the rifle range in the basement of Mechanical Engineering building will be open to all students from 1 till 5 o'clock. Rifle practice is a recognized institution at most of the large schools of the country at which military science is taught. Though the teams for the past few years have worked under many difficulties, the showing made has been most creditable, considering the class of teams which have been competed against.

Through the efforts of Lieutenant Bowman, the organization has been built up from a loosely-knit group of crack shots to a rigidly governed "Rifle Company." Students wishing to try out for places on the team may register for course 5, Military Science, requirements being four hours' credit in this department at the University of Nebraska, or its recognized equivalent at other accredited schools. One hour credit is given for this course.

Girls' Party Planned As a Gorgeous Affair For Friday, Dec. 5

The co-ed party to be held the night of the Cornhusker banquet gives the promise of being a gorgeous affair.

It is to be a costume party and already mild plans, for startling garbs are to be heard wherever groups of girls assemble.

This party will be the first all-university girls' social affair of the year, and the girls plan to make it the biggest event of the kind ever held and say the men will have to hustle if they succeed in making their banquet the bigger affair of the evening.

The special committees are busy with preparations for the evening's fun, and all university girls will soon have an opportunity to procure their tickets.

DR. CLAPP OUT WITH SICKNESS

Professor of Physical Education Threatened With Operation but Not Seriously Ill.

Dr. R. G. Clapp has been ill for several days, unable to conduct his classes. The nature of his sickness has not been definitely decided but it may become necessary for him to submit to an operation within a few days. At present his condition is not considered alarming.

Dr. Clapp is head professor of physical education and director of the men's gymnasium. To a great extent that department is placed under a handicap by his absence at this time. An assistant has assumed the duties of his office until such time as he will be able to take charge again.
