JUNIORS MEET FRESHMEN IN FINAL GRIDIRON GAME TODAY

Massacre Occurs on Nebraska Field
at 3:30 Unless Damp Field Prevents.

Several students, laboring under the delusion that the football season closed nearly two weeks ago, are hereby served notice that the curtain will not go down on the last act until this afternoon, when the Freshmen and Juniors meet to decide which are champions of the university. Everybody except these said several students is already aware of the fact, and plan to turn out in full force.

Unless rain, snow or fog prevent, the contest will be staged on the athletic field at 3:30 p. m. It was rumored yesterday that the battle would have to be postponed on account of the dense London fog which have enveloped us for the past several days. This is stoutly denied by the managers of the two elevens, who declare that their men will fight it out if they have to wear headlights and fog horns through out the contest.

While Registrar Rutledge has not sent out a notice of "all classes excused," it is said that today's attendance at 3 o'clocks and 4 o'clocks will be rather slim.

Grumann Speaks Thursday.

"Side Lines in College Life," is the topic upon which Prof. Paul Henry Grumann will speak Thursday evening in the Music hall of the Temple building. The address will begin promptly 7 o'clock. December 4th, remember.
