CAMPUS INSPECTION.

During the meeting of the agriculturalists of the state this week, the university campus will probably be more or less under surveillance. The question of campus removal or extension naturally arises, with so large a number of influential citizens of the state within the city. Following the advice of the lumbermen last week, the farmers will probably take advantage of their chance to view the campus.

The question of removal to the farm campus is one which is of considerable importance to the farming element in the state. As the situation is now, Nebraska has a fine and modern plant at the farm campus. It is designed for college, school, and short course students. The college of agriculture students divide their time between the farm and city campus. But the plant is essentially an agricultural one. Consequently, not a little objection has been raised to locating the other colleges at the farm by the farmers over the state. They feel that the farm campus is more a part of them than the city campus, and hesitate to divide honors with the other colleges. During the week, they will compare the two sites, with reference to casting their ballots for or against removal in the fall. It may be that their attitude when they leave the city will reflect the final decision on the location of the university.

LAST CALL.

The business management of the 1914 Cornhusker has issued a last call—that all photographs for the annual be arranged for by the end of the week. Their object is the publication of the book one month in advance of the time set by former managements. This can be done, provided the upper-classmen and women realize that it is up to them. All personal sittings are to be arranged for by Saturday. All organizations are due within a few weeks. The last call has been sounded.

AVE!

It is with a feeling of the sincerest pleasure that we are able to congratulate ex-President Andrews upon reaching his seventieth birthday. Although his health is broken, we are having constant proof that his mind is as keen and alert as ever it was.

While none of the undergraduates knew Dr. Andrews upon the campus, all Brown men reverence his memory, and his name never fails to arouse enthusiasm. It is fitting that every Brunonian should have a feeling of gratitude toward him who did so much for Brown. Brown Daily Herald.

Grade Schools Patronize Art Gallery.

Grade-school youngsters are vying with the university students for places among the patrons of art. Every afternoon under the skillful manipulation of their teacher, a whole grade, fifty or sixty pupils, is piloted thru the art exhibit now in progress at the University library. Great is the pride of every young hopeful when his turn to go to the exhibit arrives. It is the intention of Mr. Hunter, City Superintendent of public schools, to have every grade-school pupil in the city to see the exhibit before it closes January 21st.

Band Concert February 2.

The annual concert of the university cadet band is to be given at the Oliver theater, February 2. This is a Monday night, and special dispensation has been extended to the band to hold their musical festival at this time.

The band is in prime condition this year. With forty-five pieces and daily practices the men have gotten a larger swing and spirit to their work than in the case of former bands. The concert this winter promises to be a record mark.

Why Editors Go Insane.

Gary, Ind.—To satisfy his subscribers who were unable to understand any language but the dialect spoken in the foreign country from which they emigrated to America, A. H. Sako, editor of a Polish daily has started to issue his paper in six different languages. Proof readers on the paper have gone on the strike and the rest of the staff are looking for new jobs.—Drake Daily Delphi.

Foresters Elect Officers.

At a meeting of the Forest club last night, Prof. R. J. Pool spoke on the "Ecology of Conifers."

Following the program, an election of officers resulted in the following slate: For president, L. C. Hurt; vice president, C. L. Forsling; secretary, J. W. Brooks.

Cornell Expenditures Soar.

Eight cents a second, $4.84 a minute, $6,967 a day and $2,544,137 a year is the astonishing summary of expenses required to maintain and operate Cornell university. An average of $403.12 per student per year is spent while the average student only pays the university $81.43.

Michigan Has the Most Graduates.

Michigan university has more living alumni than any other institution of learning in the country. There are today 22,000 men and women who have received degrees from Michigan. Harvard is second with 21,000 living graduates, and Yale is third with 18,000.

W. E. McCourt, formerly of Cornell and now professor of geography at Washington university, visited the local geography department yesterday. Professor McCourt is Washington's representative at the Missouri valley conference meeting held yesterday.
