MANY UNI STUDENTS TEACH IN TEMPLE HIGH

An Excellent Opportunity Offered for Teaching Practice—Nine Departments.

By reason of the proximity of Temple High School to the University of Nebraska, many of the students in the Teachers' College are given an opportunity of doing some teaching in that institution. In all cases they have proved to be very efficient instructors and are giving complete satisfaction. The truth of this assertion is substantiated by the large number who are employed.

This preliminary practice in teaching is also proving to be very beneficial to the students, and ought to be of inestimable value to them when they have been given permanent positions in other places.

The following is the list of the student instructors and the subjects they teach:

English.
Helen Carns, Vivian Cleaver, Marjette Hiatt, Irene Kirschister, Erma Maree Nelson, Ethel Pegler, Merle Simpson, Helen Davison, Elsie Granger, Florence Hill, Margaret McHenry, Ruth Odell, Elizabeth Scott, Ada Sipes.

German.
Carrie Cultra, Hortense Kauffman, Johanna Ogden, Carrie Therkelson, Helen Jess, Edith, Nealle, Helen Springer.

History.
Eva Brokaw, Miriam Buck, Ralph Hunkins, Otis Simpson, Tryon Shepherd, Edith Tewkesbury.

European History.
Laberta Dysart, Olive Lucas, Ruth Kimball, Louise Rice.

Latin.
Alma Blandin, Elizabeth Gorden, Nora Nelson, Olga Brecks, Marian Hanson, Winefred Outhouse.

Mathematics.
Marguerite Brannigan, Christina Claussen, Mabel Clayton, Lucille Downing, Loretta Given, Marjorie Haas.

Normal Training.
A. M. Vance.

Science.
Gisela Birkner, Mae Clayton, Lillian

Lerum, Roy Marohn, Margaret O'Sullivan, Iva Swenk, Marie Tewkesbury, Gladys Weil, O. J. Wood, Louise Brownell, Lucille Hager, Irma Michelson, E. P. Nafziger, Freda Schmale, Harold Taft, Melvina Waters, Bertha Weise.

JOHN J. CASEY

John J. Casey, congressman from the Eleventh district of Pennsylvania is one of the prominent labor leaders in his state, having been an international officer of the Journeymen Plumbers, Gas Fitters and Steam Fitters' Helpers' union. He is a Democrat and thirty-eight years old.

Quiz Professors.

A university professor recently gave to his English literature class a general information quiz on modern writers and suffered the necessity (note that word "suffered" of flunking the class with practically zero grades.

Why not a student quiz for the faculty covering things that every student knows? It is highly probable that the majority of the professors on the hill, not excepting even the members of the English department, could not make a passing grade on the very quiz this professor gave his students. Here are a few reasonable suggestions for a student-faculty examination:

1. What is a double-dribble?
2. Explain the difference between a safety and a touchback.
3. Give the names of the students in your class; do you know your students out of class?
4. Explain the ramifications of a week-night date rule.
5. Name and describe two of the latest dances seen at student parties.
6. Define "jitney," "fatima," "dope," "punch."
7. Was it grape juice or city water that Secretary Bryan had in the gym?
8. Explain the relations of the student council and the university council.
9. Who are Packy McFarland, John Bunny, Gyp the Blood? Is Hannes Kohlemainen a man, an island, a breakfast food or a new dance? What salary will Joe Tinker draw in the Federal league?
10. Would you know the tango if you saw it danced? Have you ever seen it danced? If so, where? Compare with other "decent" dances regularly permitted at student parties.—Ex.

HENRY CLAY HALL

Henry Clay Hall of Colorado Springs, Colo., who has been nominated a member of the interstate commerce commission by President Wilson, is considered one of the ablest lawyers in Colorado and has the backing of many commercial and civic bodies in the Rocky Mountain region. Mr. Hall was born in New York state, graduated from Amherst and Columbia law school, and in 1892 went to Colorado Springs. He was elected mayor of that city in 1895 and has filled other offices there, and also has been president of the Colorado Bar association.
