People We Know.

Don Warner, ex-'14, is visiting friends in Lincoln this week. Mr. Warner is an assistant superintendent for the Selden-Breck Construction Company of St. Louis. His company has just completed a fifteen-story building in Des Moines and Mr. Warner is waiting in Lincoln until assigned to another building.
 Earl J. Taylor, 1913 graduate, has taken charge of the agricultural department of the O'Neill High School.

School authorities at Dartmouth have been presented with $100,000 for the purpose of building a theater.

STUDENT COUNCIL MOVEMENT STILL WAXES HOT
 this medium of common expression between students and faculty be maintained.

Discussion of the report was participated in not only by the score of students present, but also by members of the faculty. Dean Engberg was of the opinion that much could be said on both sides of the question, but that if the powers of the council were not too extensive and absolute, the council would prove very helpful. Chan Trimble expressed similar views, and Will Kavan suggested that a faculty veto would be an effective check upon absolutism. The reports, according to Mr. Kavan, show but little political domination of the council in schools where tried, and he was of the opinion that a little politics was all right anyhow.

Professor Caldwell concluded the discussion by expressing the view that the student council was necessary in order to make the students feel responsibility for their conduct.

After some discussion as to the phrasing of the motion that should reflect the action of a voluntary body, the meeting decided to appoint a committee to issue a call for the selection of ten members from each class to form a constitutional convention for drafting the new student government. It was also decided to have a special issue of the Rag devoted to the council and to call a mass meeting for the purpose of determining student sentiment as a whole. The meeting adjourned with very little feeling worked up on either side of the question.

RUSSELL F. GREINER

Russell F. Greiner, president of the International Association of Rotary Clubs, has been making a tour of the east in the interests of those organizations of business and professional men. He invited President Wilson to attend the annual convention of the clubs at Houston, Tex., next June. Mr. Greiner is head of a bank-note concern in Kansas City.

Missouri Studee Steal Name Plates Off Sorority Houses.

The male element of the University of Missouri has recently contracted the habit of collecting the door plates from the sorority houses. The plates are made of brass with the Greek letters of the club artistically carved upon them and are highly prized by the students for wall decorations. At present there is but one door plate remaining in place. A guard sits nightly in the front room of the house to which it belongs to prevent further depredations.—Drake Daily Delphic.

Students Censors of Dancing.
 Thirty-nine students have been appointed censors of dancing at the University of Chicago. The purpose of these censors is to be responsible for the dancing in general at university dances, and in particular to be responsible for the dancing of men of their organization.—Daily Californian.
