

MEMORIAL CONVOCATION
SERVICES YESTERDAY

Students and Faculty Members Gather in Remembrance of Honored Dead.

Convocation services in memory of ex-Chancellor Allen Richardson Benton, Librarian Walter Kendall Jewett, Assistant Professor Julia Marie Korsmeyer, and Assistant Professor Hubert Bidler Carpenter were held in Memorial Hall yesterday morning.

Mrs. Raymond played the organ prelude "Adagio" from Reinecke. Opening the impressive service, Chancellor Avery read: "The Lord is my light and salvation; whom shall I fear?" and the response came: "The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" "Wait on the Lord; be of good courage, and He shall strengthen thy heart."

Judge H. H. Wilson of the faculty of the College of Law paid tribute to the memory of Allen Benton, the first Chancellor of the University of Nebraska. Judge Wilson entered the University in 1873, and was personally acquainted with the man and his work from that time on. He told the story of the pioneer educator, believing in his work, in the ultimate success and greatness of the University. He said in part:

"Chancellor Benton was one of the stalwarts who taught the people and laid the foundations for today, and along the line of chancellors down to the present time no one among the noted workers can be placed higher than that of the first chancellor. In those days it was no small task to induce the legislature to make appropriations. Chancellor Benton saw seventy-five years of progress and growth; he saw the land doubled and quadrupled in people and wealth; saw the mysteries sought out and harnessed and finally saw education taken over by the people themselves. Up to within a few months of his death he remained active mentally, a great reader, a believer in his project and glad to see it succeed."

Prof. F. M. Fling reviewed the life of Walter Kendall Jewett, for many years the librarian of the University. His tribute was fitting to one who had served the University long and well: "Dr. Jewett died before his prime. What he had done was but a promise of what he might have done. The passing of such a man from the life of the University was a great calamity; to fail to appreciate his work, to forget him would have been a greater one. And yet how readily we do forget! How little the dead live in memory! How slow we are in realizing that 'there are no dead' that 'those who have left us have joined the choir invisible of those immortal dead who live again in minds made better by their presence; live in pulses stirred to generosity, in deeds of daring rectitude, in scorn of miserable aims that end with self, in thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars.' How can we deny them the right to such a survival, how can we knowingly rob ourselves of the blessings of constant communion with them? Why should we lament the change called death if death is as natural as birth? Why should we not welcome death as Whitman did with a carol and lie quietly down to sleep in the 'sure entwining arms?' The attitude toward death of our friend who has left us was as natural as his life."

Prof. Clara Conklin spoke in remembrance of Assistant Professor Korsmeyer of the Romance Language department. She was in personal touch with Miss Korsmeyer during her time in the University, as a student and as an instructor. She said in part:

"Miss Korsmeyer was a child of the University and ever an honor to her Alma Mater. And her place will never be filled by a more versatile teacher. She reminded one of seedtime and harvest all in one, with the eagerness of youth was the eagerness for knowledge. Joy and gladness were in her tasks, not for the pleasures which the mastery of them would bring, but because of the joy in the tasks themselves. Her life was filled with noble purposes and sane ideas."

Dean Burnett of the College of Agriculture paid tribute to the memory of Assistant Professor Carpenter of his college. Of him he said:

"It is my privilege to bring a tribute to a man who came to our University less than a year ago, and during his brief connection he proved himself to be a man of unassuming manner and genial disposition." Dean Burnett spoke of his early years and his rise to a professorship in the University at the early age of twenty-four years. "The University mourns his loss and extends its sympathy."

Kansas.

Wednesday night, Kansas, Oklahoma and Colorado meet in a triangular debate on the question of unicameral legislature in the several states. Kansas will talk against Colorado, while another team from each will talk against a team from Oklahoma. Kansas has not defeated Colorado for six years, but they are very confident of winning on Wednesday night.

BOARD OF REGENTS

dental fees will in no case be refunded; laboratory fees only during the first four weeks, and only upon the best of reasons.

Incidental Matters Dispensed With.

The Scotts Bluff Experiment Station was authorized to purchase a Ford automobile for the use of the University in sub-station work. A formal application for a license to sell hog cholera serum in sister states was also made out. The officers of the board were authorized to execute the necessary bonds for the safekeeping of the new federal property from the arsenal at Rock Island, Ill.

Conservative About Changing Titles.

The action of the Board of Regents carries out the desire of the University Senate in the matter of changing departmental organization titles, but was less radical in regard to department decentralization.

1. The academic titles to be used with departments shall be: professor, associate professor, assistant professor and instructor.

2. As a general principle the title of instructor shall apply to no one who is not a graduate of the four-year collegiate course of study.

3. All other assistants, helpers and instructors shall be grouped under the general heading of "department assistants" and listed by departments.

Faculty titles were created in accordance.

Faculty Opinion Not Unanimous for Decentralization.

On the question of decentralization the board was not unanimous in its favor. Because of the fact that the faculty was not nearly unanimous on this point, and because it was thought that in case of another vote it would not be likely to pass, the Board of Regents acted conservatively.

Dean Hastings Honored.

The board passed a unanimous resolution commending Dean Hastings for his able services and admirable loyalty that he has shown in defending the University of Nebraska in the law courts. He was counsel for the University in its Medical College litigation, in the injunction suit of the North Printing Company, in its suit against the Board of Regents, and a second suit by Kuhl against the publishers of the Daily Nebraskan. In each case the University was successful. The dean's services were gratis.

Sophomore Pledging Recommended.

A request having come from all the fraternity men on the faculty to make the recent action of the inter-fraternity council in favor of sophomore pledging a general law, the Board of Regents gave this its official sanction and recommended that sophomore pledging be made obligatory to all fraternities in the council.

Budget Passed.

The budget as passed by the Regents yesterday is substantially the same as passed last year. All salaries remain the same as last year. The board adjourned at five o'clock.

Dean Enberg to Send Out his regular Black Edged Letters—Some Seniors Wondering.

Notice of conditions, failures and incompletes will be sent out from Dean Engberg's office today. In the case of some it may mean a failure to obtain a degree in June, as a number of seniors who have trusted to luck will find out to their sorrow.

The number of the mid-semester reports is unusually large this season. In a few cases the students may be dismissed, this depends largely upon the decision of the delinquency committee and their opinions of the individual's work.

ANNOUNCEMENT

During the remaining weeks of the school year the Daily Nebraskan will issue several special numbers in supplement form. It has been the custom in previous years for various school organizations to ask the management of the Daily Nebraskan to allow one issue of the paper to a certain organization. These special issues have always been successful from the editorial standpoint but nearly always a financial burden to the paper. In the future special editions will be issued in supplement form only as this method allows plenty of time to get news and advertising matter into shape and will not cause a delay in the issue of the daily edition.

During the next five weeks several special editions will be issued as follows:

GIRL'S NUMBER early in May.

PHARMACEUTICAL NUMBER second week in May.

Other EDITIONS will be arranged for during the next few weeks.

Heads of organizations contemplating a special edition as in previous years will kindly consult with the business manager.
