

MEXICAN SITUATION
DISCUSSED BY FLING
Does Not Think Time Ripe for Action—Interests of Many Countries Are Involved.

Professor Fling of the European History department explained the Mexican situation at convocation yesterday morning. The main theme of the talk was that the various countries should co-operate in handling such an affair as that in Mexico. The many money interests in Mexico have been calling for aid and protection. Because of the Monroe Doctrine the United States will not allow other countries to interfere, although they have people there trying to make some of the big money. These people must be protected and if the United States will not allow England, Germany and France to protect their people they will have to protect them. This country will have to stand the expense in lives as well as money in order to protect the people of other countries who have interests in Mexico.

Of the sixteen million people in Mexico only two million have control over affairs political as well as financial. The remaining fourteen million people are peons attached to the soil and under the absolute control of the powerful minority.

The Mexican problem is the Philippine problem on an enlarged scale. Should the United States try to assume the regulation of the situation it will have to educate fourteen million Indians, and the problem will be mightier than any ever handled by this country.

The international co-operation method was endorsed by the professor and although it is being introduced only on a mild scale through the A. B. C. Conference, a start has nevertheless been made.

A petition for a vote on the honor system is being submitted to the students at Minnesota. The system as submitted calls for a separate college vote.
