ney," said the easterner. "It is the same in any tone quality he wants to secure. He hears it mentally, vividly, and, with face and voice alive with his own ideal, he goes before his men, telling them in the fewest, but most colorful words, what it is he wants at this and that stage of the performance. I do not wonder he has a great orchestra."

study of the other, with a group of students from the other country pursuing studies in it.

All of the expenses of the trip except fare from Lincoln to New York City and return, and the smaller incidental personal expenditures while on tour, are met by the association. The party will leave New York May 30th on the Lamport & Holt steamer Van Dyke, visiting the West Indies, Rio de Janeiro and Santos in Brazil, Montevideo in Uruguay, and Buenos Aires in Argentina. From Buenos Aires the South American continent will be crossed by rail to Santiago, Chile, and the return north made with stops in northern Chile, Peru, Panama, and the northern coast of Colombia, returning thence to New York between the middle of August and the first of September.

Professor Persinger will carry with him a couple of cameras, as on his preceding trip to the west coast, and attempt to make a collection of negatives faithfully portraying present conditions in the various South American countries he visits. These will be converted into lantern slides on his return, and will be made use of in his Latin-American course the first semester of next year.

swinging, spoofing and various other like attractions.

When it was reported that the Black Masques and the Innocents would be announced, a lull came over the crowd and with breathless suspense they watched the favored few selected one by one. Judge H. H. Wilson of the Law School gave the Innocent presentation speech, while Miss Graham presented the Black Masques.

Next year's members of the Innocent society are as follows:

- Silas M. Bryan,
- Russell F. Clark,
- Carl D. Ganz,
- Homer G. Hewitt,
- Warren H. Howard,
- Donald D. Mapes,
- Ralph H. Northrup,
- Frank S. Perkins,
- Herbert S. Reese,
- Oscar W. Sjogren,
- Phillip O. Southwick,
- Cloyd L. Stewart,
- Otto H. Zumwinkel.

The Black Masque selections are as follows:

- Louise Bedwell,
- Ethel Bennett,
- Lorena Bixby,
- Frieda Stuff,
- Flo Boyles,
- Ethel Hills,
- Edith Robins,
- Helen Thomas,
- Margret Farley,
- Gertrude Scribner,
- Mabel Sterne,
- Gladys Weil,
- Genieve Lowry.

Nebraska has been highly honored in dramatic circles. Mr. David Belasco, the great New York producer, has seen fit to put on a production written by a former Nebraskan. The name of the play is "What's Wrong," while the writer's name is Ballard. This play scored a phenomenal hit on Broadway. It ran for several months. Mr. Ballard numbers more than one success among his works. "Believe Me, Xantippe," is one of his well-known successes. This is no small honor for one of Nebraska's old students.

The moving germ has begun to pervade the Greeks of Nebraska. Almost every bunch now has its special house committee or agent out looking for good prospects. The idea seems to be to give the freshmen something to do and to beat down the high rentals. Outside of this there is another big advantage—the real estate agent usually comes around in an automobile and, of course, about half of the chapter is taken out to see the new house. A motor trip in the cool of these spring evenings is no small matter. It is well worth the trouble of looking over a mere house. Anyhow, the real estate men have got them going south.
