

AMUSEMENTS

When Richard Bennett's co-workers presented "Damaged Goods" in Ann Arbor, the seat of the University of Michigan, Dr. V. C. Vaughan, dean of the Medical department entertained the company at a luncheon in his home prior to the matinee performance. Dr. Vaughan had seen the play during the Fourth International Congress on School Hygiene in Buffalo, N. Y., where it was given last August under the auspices of the Congress, and at that time he had urged Mr. Bennett to try to arrange his tour so that the drama might be given in the university city. Mr. Bennett gladly assented to the suggestion.

Following the Ann Arbor engagement, Dr. Vaughan wrote to Mr. Bennett, saying:

"I hear nothing but the highest appreciation of the play, and many members of the faculty are very desirous that it be repeated here, at some time in the near future, and that an effort be made to have every student see it. All agree that it is the most powerful plea for a pure life that could possibly be made to the young."

Dr. Otis Nesbit, head of the medical department of the University of Valparaiso, Indiana, also saw Mr. Bennett in "Damaged Goods" during the Congress in Buffalo, and invited the producer to bring the play to Valparaiso and give it in the university auditorium for the benefit of the student body. The train schedules out of Chicago made it impossible for Mr. Bennett to accept this invitation during his recent engagement in the latter city, but he hopes to give the play in Valparaiso next October, during his tour in "Damaged Goods," "Maternite" and "The Idol Breaker," the three plays which will constitute his repertoire next season.

"Damaged Goods" is to be given in Lincoln at the Oliver, May 22 and 23, by Mr. Bennett and his original New York company of co-workers.
