The DAILY NEBRASKAN purposes to be the free voice of student sentiment;
 to be fair; to be impartial; to seek advice
 as well as offer it; to truthfully picture college life; to go further than the mere printing of news by standing for the highest ideals of the University; in short, to serve the University of Nebraska.

Today's issue is the last one in this semester. With it the old staff goes out and the new steps in. It is customary for the NEBRASKAN to sing its "swan song" at the close of the year. But, as perhaps before, we are going to depart from precedent. We can not sing.

To the new staff we give our sincerest wishes for a successful NEBRASKAN next semester. We have the greatest confidence in its ability to manage the paper. And we sincerely hope that the day is not far distant when we may have at Nebraska a school of journalism, and that the day is less distant when reporters will be given credit for satisfactory work. The average person can not realize what a task it is to get men to give from one to three hours a day for the single compensation of having his name appear in small type in the staff box. This semester the editorial staff has been forced to become the reportorial staff for many issues. Yet, can you blame the reporters? Give them credit and we will get the work out of them.

Many complaints have reached us on the cartoons and the "boiler plate" in the paper. "Why did you leave the four-column paper? If you couldn't fill a five?" The reason for the filters has very often been a lack of advertising. It was impossible to fill the paper with linotype matter because of the great expense and the small income at the time. This would have meant further deficit for the paper. Often we have been unable, either from actual lack of news, or from lack of reporters, or both, to get enough news to fill up our half of the paper. And so we ran the "boiler plate." Yet in every issue this semester the students have received at least fifty per cent more reading matter than last semester in the four-column no-boiler-plate "Rag."

We have tried to do at all times what we have thought best. We have been wrong part of the time—perhaps the greater part of the time. We have been sincere in our desire to make the DAILY NEBRASKAN of service to its University. If we have failed, much are we to blame; if we have succeeded, we have but fulfilled the purpose of a college daily.

Tomorrow is the last issue—and next week is the last week in the old University for many of us. And now, as we look back over it all, how little seem the student council, how little the innocent elections, how little military camp. And how great seems the good times we have had, the care-free life we have led, the true-blue friends we have made. After all, these are the things that count. And above all stands FRIENDSHIP. For our college days will be remembered not by our little political fights, not by our defeats and victories, but they will be written upon our hearts, never to fade, by the memories of those who have become dear to us—our friends.

We are going out into a different world very soon. We are going to leave old friends and search for new. But shall we always hold dear to us all the memories of our days at old Nebraska. And close to us shall always be the friends of our college days.

LAST DAYS OF SCHOOL
 CLOUDED WITH QUESTIONS

Examinations, Picnics, Joy Rides, Boat Rides, and a Thousand Other Conflicts.

Two extremes of feeling are soon to be undergone by the students in the next week. The strain, worry and tear of examinations must first be suffered. Midnight cramming, wet-towels and strong coffee will be the entertainment of the week. Picnics, movies and car rides will be completely ousted, and in their place will be theories, declensions, historical data, and other necessities.

As a culmination of this effort, however, will come the exhilaration of vacation, spent on the farm, selling books, or swimming at the lakes. Exams and cramming will become a shadowy memory.

The members who are leaving college for good, however, will not heave the sigh of relief of the underclassmen. Not only will they experience sorrow at the thought of leaving the pleasant scenes and experiences, but they will part with grief from the warm friends of college days. The life into which they will pass is their real life, the life in which they are to prove whether or not they are worthy of the privileges afforded them by our University. They are to become the citizens and stalwarts of society, and the thought of these things cannot but tinge the feeling of relief from the grind with something of wonder and sadness.
