CACTUS RETIRES FOR THE WINTER

Gardners Are Installing Them in Their Winter Quarters—Nebraska Has Fine Collection.
 "This is a nice job for a man who don't care what he says," remarked one of the University gardeners Tuesday morning. He was engaged in moving the cactus into winter quarters. Some thirty-five varieties of these desert plants, most of which are unable to bear the rigors of a Nebraska winter, have occupied a bed at the southeast corner of University Hall during the summer. They range widely in size, shape, and prickliness. One is more than seven feet tall. There is a spineless cactus, and one so formidable that it can be handled only by means of a rope tied around it. These do not include the Giant Cactus, which is kept in the west greenhouse. This is really only a tip cut from one of the branches of the enormous plant which grows on the desert of Arizona. It has been placed in dry sand and will probably live for several years under these conditions. It bloomed last Friday for the fifth time this year. Dr. Poole has one of the blossoms which appeared during the summer.

splendid helmsman. Caley, the speedy little Sterling athlete, is being coached for the quarterback job, in the event that Hawkins is injured or fails to deliver satisfactorily.
 That Stiehm feels the need for heroic measures, was evident to those who observed yesterday's practice at the Farm gridiron. After assigning the men their new positions, the tall grim pigskin pedagogue drove the varsity hopefuls up and down the long field for three solid hours without intermission. It was a case of "full speed ahead" under terrific Stiehm pressure. The Cornhusker Limited is a week behind the schedule, with only four days in which to catch up. But there is a "Casey Jones" at the throttle who can turn the trick if it is turnable at all.

JUNIOR LAWS HOLD SEMESTER ELECTION

Lane Elected to Lead the Class by Unanimous Vote—Customary Cheering Takes Place.

Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock the Junior Law Class assembled in their fall class meeting for the purpose of organizing and electing their president for the coming semester. It was a very harmonious meeting after it once was called together although it was several minutes before the class could be called together. There seemed to be but one thought amongst the seventy classmates who were present

In this style the incurved waist has been handled with rare cunning. Unquestionably it gives character and "punch" to the garment. You can't appreciate the grace of this feature unless you see it. You'll see it only at this store--the store that features and that thought was that Darell Lane was to be the next president. After the Class Yell and Song had been cried for a while nominations for president were called for. Mr. Lane's name was suggested and it seemed like it was the unanimous choice of the class from the cry of hurrah which came from all parts of the room. Someone made the motion that Mr. Lane be elected via the Yell Route and the motion carried and was immediately put in operation.
