PROFESSORS WILL MEET IN NEW YORK

First Meeting of University Professors' Association Takes Place on January First

On Friday, January 1, 1915, at the Chemists' Club in New York City, the first general meeting of the University Professors' Association will be held. This organization has been in the process of making since a year ago. At that time was felt the need for some central organization, so the most noted professors in America constitute a committee on membership. These men were given the power of choosing the professors whom they considered the most prominent instructors in the United States. Doctor Bessey, as the most noted botanist, named the men who were most prominent in botany in all the universities. Dr. Roscoe Pound, professor of law at Harvard, is another Nebraska man honored with a place on the committee to appoint. About thirty members of Nebraska's faculty are on the list of one thousand charter members and are invited to attend the banquet on January 1st.

The purposes and aims of this association are many, the principal one being to offer to the professors the opportunity for more effective cooperation as custodians of higher education and research. At the meetings such problems as tenure of office of university professors, the awarding of grades, honors and promotions to students, the function of the faculty in university government, and all the problems which university professors as a group are called upon to face will be discussed. It is probable that a quarterly periodical will be published by the association. In this magazine will be discussed the aforementioned problems and a general plan of collective action concerning them will be provided.

This organization fills a long felt need and will no doubt prove to be a great success. Nebraska should feel proud of her professors who have been asked to join. At present this list cannot be given, but will be published later in the year, after organization has been perfected.

CORNHUSKERS HAVE MANY GOOD BANQUETS

Being Banqueted and Honored by All—Fitting Close of Prosperous Football Year

The football team has been given three banquets in the three days. On Tuesday evening, Mr. Gross entertained the team at his home; Wednesday evening a large banquet was given in Omaha in honor of the team, and Thursday evening the Lincoln Commercial Club had a feed for the boys. Everybody in the state appreciates the splendid record of the Cornhuskers.

Princeton to Adopt Graduate Committee Plan

Princeton, December 4.—For the purpose of bringing the alumni into closer touch with the intellectual side of the life of the University, a new plan has recently been adopted by the Graduate Council, with the approval of the board of trustees, providing for the establishment of standing committees on conference with the faculty. According to the new provision:

"The executive committee of the Graduate Council may appoint, subject to the approval of the board of trustees, such committees on conference. It shall be the purpose of these committees in sympathetic co-operation with the various schools and departments of the University, to confer with the teaching staff, to ascertain the needs of the various departments, and report on them to the Council. These reports may be transmitted to the board of trustees in such way as the Council may see fit. These committees are to consist of one or more members of the Council who shall have associated with them men especially interested in the department concerned. These members shall not necessarily be either Princeton men nor college graduates."

It is expected that the new committees will be established gradually, but that ultimately there will be a committee for each department of the University. Professor F. F. Abbott, in commenting on the new plan in the Princeton Alumni Weekly, makes the following observations:

"One interesting point in connection with the plan is the fact that it is the joint work of the trustees, the Alumni, and the Faculty, and in that respect sets a valuable precedent for future action. One other point is worth mentioning in conclusion. The adoption of this plan brings the Alumni into a more vital relation with university life, and in particular with the intellectual side of that life, without the sacrifice by the Faculty of any part of its control of the educational policy of the University. It is the second step in a general movement, of which the first was the election of alumni members at Princeton and elsewhere to the board of trustees."

STUDENTS URGED TO GET TICKETS EARLY

Because of the Rush Each Year, the Students Are Urged to Buy Their Tickets Early

Students living out of the city who expect to leave for their homes on Friday or Saturday are requested to secure their tickets a day before they desire to leave, informing the ticket agent of the train on which they will leave. This is necessary in order that the proper accommodations may be made by the railroads.
