FRIDAY, APRIL 9, 1915

The success of University Week and the importance of its becoming an established institution has caused the management to issue this special edition of the Nebraskan in its honor. May it grow bigger and better every year!

The financial statement of the Junior Play reveals a startling fact—that for once the annual play has a balance on the credit side. Occasionally a precedent is broken, but few expected that any Junior class would ever act contrary to the example of their predecessors in failing to present a play without leaving a deficit in the class treasury. This year, however, the managers succeeded in procuring sufficient support from the members of the class to assure the financial success before it was definitely decided to produce the play. If Junior classes in the future will follow the example of the class of 1916 they will be wiser and happier than those who have gone before.

OUR VISITORS

Nebraska is fortunate in having the meeting of the Western Intercollegiate Gymnastic Association held here. This is perhaps the only opportunity we have of entertaining representatives of all the large universities in the middle west, and we should not fail to make the most of it. The tendency of the student body is to underestimate the importance of gymnastic ability. These men spend as much time and effort as do the men in football, but of course there is no opportunity to make a spectacular sixty-yard run and consequently no heroes are produced. But the achievements of these men are as worthy of notice as in any other line of sports. Nothing short of a crowded Armory tomorrow night will do justice to this event.

A Few Ideas

University Week seems to have been thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated by the people of the state. The reports which have reached me contain nothing but unstinted praise for the students, their performances and their conduct. For me to say that University Week was a glorious week, that every student was a star, that every young man behaved like a gentleman, that every co-ed departed herself like a lady, would be merely to echo the praise that has come directly from the towns visited. The success of University Week indicates that it should become a fixed tradition. As such it would be an opportunity for the state to see the best that is in us, so to speak, and an incentive to the University to show not a superior, but a constantly growing and improving product.

S. AVERY.

The management of University Week is totally unable to fully express its thanks to the two hundred or so University people who have helped in this year's program as performers, business managers of troupes, trainers or helpers on the thousand and one details that have kept so many busy. It is the best kind of Nebraska spirit that has led them to sacrifice personal convenience and comfort for "the good of the cause." The Week has been a success and to these loyal Nebraskans belongs most of the credit.

H. S. HEWITT,
Senior Manager.

As I understand the purpose of the University Week, the whole is not intended to merely entertain and amuse. The Dramatic Club has tried to live up to the ideal in choosing "The Man from Home" as the play to produce. The old attitude toward the play is passing. People are beginning to realize that the legitimate drama is a great power for good and that the art of preaching morals without "causing pain" is most easily accomplished through that medium. The disagreeable sex problem play would never do for a University Week entertainment, but the American heiress who feels called upon to buy a European title needs the moral of a play like "The Man from Home."

CLOYD L. STEWART.

The success of the trip just completed has, of course, been very gratifying to the association. The willingness of the various organizations and individuals participating in the programs to give their time and talent without remuneration of any sort has made the work much easier than might have been the case, and too much can not be said in appreciation of their co-operation. We feel that this first attempt justifies the prediction that the University Week Association has a future that will make our present efforts seem small in contrast. The response from the people of the state has been so encouraging that the attitude of the student body in support of the Home Week is the thing of greatest interest to the management at present.

R. F. CLARK,
President University Week Ass'n.

"University Week" has come and gone at Osceola. As an advertisement of our University, the Week was highly successful. The various University activities represented the school admirably. Osceola saw a side of University life she knew little of. To say that her citizens were pleased is but empty words. The people of Osceola feel that they have been superbly entertained. Above and beyond the entertainment, Osceola people feel that they have been highly honored by the students who were guests.

H. R. CAMPBELL.

It is the opinion of the writer that the University Week has done more genuine good for the University than any other single advertising campaign. To one who was actually on the line of action it was gratifying to receive the expressions of appreciation and good will from citizens of the various communities. In thanking our various hosts and hostesses for our entertainment we were universally met with the remark, "But we are the ones who should thank you people. It has been a privilege to have you here."

There is no doubt but that the proposition will be enthusiastically taken up by the towns of the state next year and a much more extensive tour arranged.

C. B. CORNELL.

I feel that a great work has been accomplished by the University Week Association. The school has been well advertised; the students who were fortunate enough to make the trip, not only enjoyed a fine outing, but it did them good to find out what really excellent families there are out in the state. From the standpoint of the people who were reached, they were all gratified to discover that their institution is really developing such ideal young people.

As to the towns themselves, too much cannot be said concerning the benefits that they apparently received. As "towns" they were well advertised; as "communities" their hospitality was developed to a much higher degree than they ever supposed it could be.

The high schools are to be commended for their excellent co-operation, and I feel safe in saying that many a student, whose future plans were somewhat vague, definitely decided to come down here to the State University after the finish of high school.

The plan is a good one, and should be made permanent. D. T. LANE,
Assistant Student Manager.
