"The Spoilers" Coming to the Orpheum, Vitalizing a Romance

It has been the fashion of late to picturize the work of famous authors, and Selig has advanced this as a fine art in "The Spoilers" from the book by Rex Beach, in most spirited and vital fashion. This moving picture play in nine reels had its first public representation at the spacious and beautiful new Strand Theatre on Broadway, in New York City, and has continued there as the feature, arguing for its profitableness and popularity. It followed this success as a regular fixture feature at the Studebaker Theatre, on Michigan avenue, Chicago, where it has continued to do wonderful business to "capacity houses."

The significant voice of the great centers where this picture has a showing, speaks volumes for this production, which undoubtedly will become a phenomenal attraction wherever presented. "The Spoilers" is a virile and as red-blooded a romance as any that has happened in the American class during the decade. It has been visualized in stunning fashion reflecting upon the astuteness of its progenitor, Wm. N. Selig, and the deep, live, sympathetic sense of its producer, Colin Campbell, as well as in the vigorous and responsive action of William Farnum and all the other artists enlisted to make it a star cast extraordinary. This picture will be presented in Lincoln, Nebr., at the Orpheum Theatre for one week commencing Monday, matinee, May 3.

When one considers that "The Spoilers" in book form, when first published, sold for $1.50, and was the largest of the six big sellers of its time; required six hours of one's time to read and thoroughly digest; the best seats for the play of the same name sold for $1.50, taking three hours for presentation—and those who have seen the play, read the book and witnessed the picture proclaim the picture superior to both; the picture being exhibited for one-sixth the price which the book sold for in the first edition, requiring only two hours of one's time to thoroughly digest the entire story, one will readily realize that the moving picture business is worthy and deserving of its prominence, its importance, and educational value.
