Miss Dorothy Raymond, former student, who has been studying music in New York City, arrived in Lincoln yesterday to spend the summer with her parents.

Max Towle, coach at Hastings College last year and a former Nebraska star, is playing with the Nebraska Indians just now.

Sigma Alpha Iota, the University Conservatory sorority, has announced the following pledges: Margaret McKay, Clara Finther, and Pearl Armstrong.

C. J. Wohlford, '14, a civil engineer, was a visitor about the campus yesterday. He has been working in California during the past winter, but is located in Omaha now.

Word has been received in Lincoln of the death of Miss Sallie Groh in Omaha. Miss Groh attended the University and was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Mr. R. E. Moore, a resident alumnae of Phi Gamma Delta, entertained the active chapter and alumnae of the fraternity at a banquet in the rose room of the Lindell Hotel Wednesday evening. Covers were laid for forty-five. The table was decorated with red carnations, the fraternity flower, and with the fraternity colors. The active chapter furnished the entertainment for the evening.

Rev. William Axling of Tokio, Japan, will arrive the last of the week to visit in Baptist church circles. He will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist Church Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Axling is a graduate of the Nebraska University and has been in charge of the Baptist work in Tokio for thirteen years. He is now chairman of the Japan Baptist Theological Seminary and vice-president of the federal mission council.

Cora Louise Friedline, scholar in the department of philosophy at the University, has received notice of her nomination to a resident fellowship at Bryn Mawr. She is the second person from the University of Nebraska to receive this distinction, which is open to students from the whole country. Dr. Winifred Hyde, instructor in the philosophy department, held the fellowship for two years. Miss Friedline was graduated at the Lincoln High School in 1909 and at the University in 1913 with Phi Beta Kappa honors. She has been engaged in graduate work in the department of philosophy for two years and during the last year has done special work in the public schools in connection with her thesis, which has to do with public school children.

An Appreciation of Senior Day

Perhaps you would not have recognized that group as Seniors, May 5th, for they had one and all cast aside the Senior dignity and were just Chancellor and Mrs. Avery's girls and boys; rather a large family to be sure, but one of pure promise and precocity, and the Chancellor and his gracious wife proved themselves equal to the task of training them in the way they should go. In fact, everything went off so beautifully natural and easy that no one would question their ability to handle as many more should the occasion arise. According to orders, no man wore a starched collar, though the station platform was well-bestrewn with suggestions of "might-have-beens."

The boat-ride was one to be long remembered. The trees along the banks wore their loveliest shade of green, while purple violets bedecked every grotto. In fact, all nature smiled most gloriously as we entered Crete and wept at our departure. (Perhaps some Sophomore might phrase it, "Nature smiled when they left Lincoln and shed tears at their return." There's no accounting for the erratic opinions of underclassmen.)

The morning was spent in games, gathering wild flowers and fruit, which we'll venture Professor Condra never knew grew in Nebraska woodlands. But there are at least two hundred and fifty eye witnesses to the fact that we plucked the finest of bananas from trees growing along the Blue and picked up oranges beneath the boughs. Burbank isn't "in on the game" with Chancellor and Mrs. Avery when it comes to hybridization. At twelve— Well, word-pictures would be inadequate. Seek out the kodak artists whose souls were stirred at the view. The way the sandwiches deviled eggs, pickles, ice cream cones, pie, cake, and cheese disappeared would have astounded the magicians of Egypt.

The showers of the afternoon dampened no one's ardor, for the music was good, hearts were happy, and feet light. All who couldn't find seats danced and all who couldn't dance found seats and enjoyed themselves otherwise. Every face wore "the smile that won't come off" on such occasions. At 6:30 the noon stunt was repeated. Chancellor Avery himself passed and repassed the pie, till everyone felt as pious as his nature would admit. Do you know the tune from one of the "Uncle Josh" records that fits the following effusion which buzzed and sang in the head of one of the Seniors on the home voyage?

"It's a grand thing to live in Nebraska
With its fine fertile fields, fruits and flowers,
And it's good to spend at the University

Some of your leisure hours.
'Tis a good thing to be at the 'mixers,'
Even though you stand by the wall,
But the very best thing
That comes with the spring
Is the Senior day, after all."

Well, that's the way the happy Seniors felt as they fared homeward. The pressure was so high that the throttle must be loosened and hearty cheers for the Chancellor and Mrs. Avery resounded. The last whistle blew at nine o'clock at the University Library.
ALICE E. DAY.

HUSKERS MEET RIVAL ON TRACK TOMORROW

Kansas and Nebraska Will Compete in Second Valley Meet of Season
—Dope Favors Jayhawkers

Dope favors Kansas in the annual dual meet scheduled for tomorrow afternoon. The Huskers' ancient rival is represented by a versatile, well-balanced squad, preceded by reports of becoming prowess. According to advance reports, the Jayhawkers have not only a veteran string of short distance men, but present in addition a corps of stellar performers at the weight events—Nebraska's greatest weakness. Facing veteran weight men, Nebraska's only hope of piling up a total lies on the cinderpath.

The Husker squad indulged in a so-called workout yesterday afternoon when Coach Reed set the men going around a muddy track. Track conditions made it impossible to get a line on what may be expected of Nebraska's short and long distance men tomorrow, but it is safe to say that in all the track events the Huskers will
