The picnic program, of which the tapping of the Innocents and the Black Masques were the main events, was the most elaborate and the best attended in the history of Ivy Day. About eight hundred students gathered in Epworth Park to celebrate the holiday. The ceremony of tapping and pledging the Black Masques was somewhat delayed because of the tardiness of the crowd, but the innocent ceremonies began at the appointed time. After the thirteen Black Masques and the thirteen Innocents had been duly tapped and presented, the Cornhusker Quartette gave a short program in the pavillion, followed shortly by a box lunch and band concert. From the point of attendance and interest, yesterday's Ivy Day was the most successful in years, and special recognition is due to Chairman Robert G. Simmons and the various members of the committee.

Florence Hostetler, Pi Beta Phi, and Aan Raymond, Phi Kappa Psi, were married Tuesday at the home of the bride's parents, Judge and Mrs. Bruno O. Hostetler of Kearney. One hundred and twenty-five guests attended the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond will make their home in Dundee. Mr. Raymond is practicing law in Omaha.

His ability as an educator was proven when the American Association of Pharmaceutical Faculties elected him as their president. The growth of the Minnesota College of Pharmacy is due mainly to Dean Wulling, who has made it one of the foremost colleges of pharmacy in the United States. The pharmaceutical garden is an outgrowth of Wulling's activity and is the pride of the institution.

NEBRASKA WINS FROM BELLEVUE

Tennis Team Defeats Visitors in Straight Matches Yesterday Afternoon—Play Was Slow

The Nebraska tennis team won from Bellevue College yesterday afternoon on the Country Club courts.

Watkins and Chatt represented Nebraska in singles yesterday and Gardiner and Ellis worked together in doubles. Watkins won from Ohman of Bellevue 6-0 and 6-3, while Chatt defeated Kenner 6-1, 7-5 and 6-2, the match going the full three sets. Neither of these matches were fast, the Nebraska men having no trouble in winning.

The doubles were even slower than the singles and went to Gardiner and Ellis 6-1 and 6-0. Kenner of the Bellevue team was taken sick during this match and was unable to play in near his usual form. The Bellevue team will play Wesleyan University today on the Country Club course.

The courts were in fine condition in preparation for the Missouri Valley Tournament which starts tomorrow morning. Every school in the valley with the exception of the Kansas Agricultural College, have entered teams.

MEET MINNESOTA AT MINNEAPOLIS

Nebraska Goes to Twin Cities for the Annual Meet With Gophers Saturday

Minnesota is the next opponent of Nebraska on the track, the Huskers meeting their northern rival in Minneapolis, Saturday. The Gopher squad is a strong aggregation, composed largely of veteran athletes, and the chances for Coach Reed's inexperienced trackmen to outpoint them are small.

The half-mile, mile and two-mile are the Gophers' fort; they have entered in these events one of the best distance men in the West. On the short track Nebraska's chances are considerably better, and she should divide evenly with Minnesota in these events. Scott, Irwin, Zumwinkle and Bates are good for at least one first in the hundred and the two-twenty. In the four-forty and half-mile Nebraska will get second places, at the inside. In the hurdles and relays Minnesota has the advantage, and the major portion of the points scored in these will go to them.

On the field, the well-balanced Minnesotans will register a bigger total than the Huskers. With the exception of Reavis in the pole vault—a good first—and Ankeny in the broad jump—who has a chance to outleap the Gopher jumpers—few first places are expected to grace Nebraska's score.

Coach Reed has been giving the squad some good competition in the daily workouts by staging free-for-all handicaps. The men are in good condition and, barring the staleness which showed in the work of some of the Husker athletes Saturday, will go against the Gophers in prime shape.

All accounts against the 1915 Cornhusker must be presented at once. Please mail same to T. A. Williams, Treas. M. L. Poteet, Business Manager.

ELECTION TODAY IN MEMORIAL HALL

Nebraska Candidates to Be Voted On—Close Contest on Managing Editorship and Associate

The Daily Nebraskan election lacks a few hours of being a thing of the past, yet those few hours are filled with anxious moments for at least five candidates. The only offices that are warmly contested are the managing editorship and the associate positions.

R. V. Koupal has no opposition for editor-in-chief. The filing time was extended in the hope that more candidates would file for this and the position of associate, but the Publication Board's hopes were only partly realized. "Dick" was acting managing editor of the Nebraskan last semester.

Everett J. Althouse, Orville Chatt, and Charles Paul are in the race for managing editor. Chatt is the present holder of this managerial office. Althouse has been on the staff of the paper for two semesters, and has had two years' experience elsewhere. Paul is also a member of the reportorial staff and has also engaged in newspaper work for two years in the capacity of editor. The race between these three men promises to be especially interesting. Two of the candidates have been noticeably active.

Doris Slater is the only candidate for the woman associate. Miss Slater is now one of the associates, having been elected to the position last semester. The choice of the other associate develops the second fight of the election. Emil J. Krahulik and A. J. Covert have both filed for the place and have been working for the required votes. Covert is a Nebraskan reporter who joined the staff at the beginning of the second semester. Krahulik was on the Cornhusker this year and has had experience in the field before.

The results will be known early in the evening, and until then the successful ones will be merely a matter of speculation in the two instances.

CAMPUS PROGRAM

MISS LEILA M'NERNEY CROWNED
QUEEN

GEO. RUSSELL MANN, ORATOR

Choses as His Subject, "The Traditions of Nebraska as They Are and as They Shall Be"

Ivy Day, the annual all-University holiday, began with the planting of the historic ivy by Oscar Sjogren, Senior president, and Percy Spencer, Junior president. George R. Mann, Law '15, Ord. followed with the Ivy Day oration, "The Traditions of the University of Nebraska: as They Are, and as They Shall Be." "A Song of Youth," the class poem, was then given by Miss Winifred Seeger, '15, Lincoln. Miss Seeger belongs to the Arts and Science College, Palladian, Girls' Club, German Dramatic Club, English Club, and Silver Serpents. The Cornhusker quartette concluded this part of the program by singing "The Cornhusker."

After weeks of speculation, the veil of secrecy was thrown aside and Leila McNeerney, '15, Lincoln, was known as one of Nebraska's May Queens. The queen was led to the historic throne by Marion Kastle, '17, North Bend; Elma Reeder, '16, Hot Springs, South Dakota; Jean Burroughs, '17, Lincoln, and Beth Walker, '17, University Place. Louise Bedwell, '15, Omaha, crowned the queen with the laurel wreath. Before the May Queen made her appearance, one hundred Senior girls, led by Freda Stuff, '15, Lincoln, and Ruth Underwood, '15, Lincoln, traversed the queen's court in a daisy chain dance.

George R. Mann, Ivy Day orator, is a graduate of Ord High School. While in school he has taken an active interest in public speaking and debate. Leila McNeerney, the May Queen, is a graduate of Lincoln High School and the Arts and Science College, member of Palladian, Phi Beta Kappa, Girls' Club, Y. W. C. A. board, and one of the thirteen Black Masques.

In his oration, "The Traditions of the University of Nebraska: As They Are, and as They Shall Be." Mr. Mann urged for the continuance of Ivy Day, upon which rests the furtherance of Nebraska's traditions and the preservation of Nebraska spirit. He said in part:

"We plant the tender ivy here today, let us all firmly resolve that it shall not climb the crumbling halls of the University to commemorate the decay of her traditions. Let these traditions, like ivy, cling to us still.

"The Greater University is no longer a dream; it is a reality. The resounding hammers of the builders of the new University will soon be heard, but in your enthusiasm for a new University, forget not to cherish the old.

"Once a devotion is firmly fixed in the mind and heart of the undergraduate, the problem of fostering a loyal alumni is half solved. The foundation is laid. Say the exponents of a great religion, 'Give us a training of children until seven years of age, and they will be identified with our religion forever.' Teach our undergraduates the traditions of the University and the future alumni will be bound to it with hooks of steel. Would you have an alumni association which forms in a
