GOSSIP OF THE THEATRES

With the exception of opening a new park this summer, the amusements were about the same as they have always been, with plenty of moving pictures, dancing, stock plays and a bit of light vaudeville.

The Barrow-Howard Players, at the Oliver, have made a bigger home in the hearts of Lincolnites than ever before. Their plays have been clean and interesting, showing the intention to please their patrons. At the Lyric the big hit of the summer was the fifteen part photoplay, "The Goddess," with Earl Williams and Anita Stewart, while the vaudeville, although mediocre at times, has catered largely to summer crowds and has won approval in some sections of the house on all occasions.

The moving picture theatres are doing themselves proud in the introducing famous stars and vital plays. Even Charlie Chaplin has pushed his face on to our screens and will be shown here every week for the remainder of the season. Capital Beach was on the wane the first part of the season, but Electric park came to its aid with a mammoth dancing pavilion, and it became quite the vogue from then on to dance the forepart of the evening at one place and then spend the remaining dances on the other floor. All in all, we have had a wide variety of amusements to attract our attention, but we welcome back the winter season with its legitimate drama and late New York light opera hits.

Nazimova arrives in Lincoln today to begin her engagement at the Orpheum in "War Brides," a vital story of conditions in her native country. Madame Nazimova will be remembered from her appearance here two years ago in Ibsen's "The Doll House." Only one other person has ever received a larger salary from the Orpheum management, and that is Mme. Bernhardt, who is now preparing to make her ninth farewell tour of this country.

Look for a write-up of this week's bill in tomorrow's Nebraskan.
