Innocents and Black Masques Have Charge—School Activities Are Emphasized—Many Notables Appear on Platform

Chancellor Samuel Avery, Prof. R. D. Scott, Assistant Director of Athletics Guy Reed and Captain Richard Rutherford addressed yesterday the boys' division of Freshmen Convocation, in charge of the Innocents. Guy C. Chambers presided. To make themselves a living part of the University was the speaker's advice to the Freshmen. The wearing of the green caps was urged as necessary to successful organization.

Chancellor Avery urged the Freshmen not to knock but to boost. To criticize, he thought, was good and well, if done with a constructive purpose in view. "A critic may do something useful. A knocker can't do anything good." Take an interest in your work. By taking an interest in your work you can "even inspire your professors to be greater professors and teachers."

Captain Richard Rutherford talked upon the value of a sound body. He urged the Freshmen to get into athletics and cautioned them not to overdo it. He said in part: "We all have a house to live in. That house is our body. Your body is the thing that is going to stick with you all through your life. We neglect this part of our life until it is too late."

Guy Reed spoke on the scholastic and economic sides of the student's life. He reiterated the necessity for scholarship, cautioning the students, on the other hand against becoming "grinds." Be an all-round fellow. Get into something, whether it be journalism athletics or debating. In discussing the economic side of the student's life he enjoined each and every one to "be a good clean fellow rather than a good spender."

Prof. R. D. Scott spoke on the necessity of school spirit and loyalty. He admonished the Freshmen to make themselves a part of the University. He asked them not to be strangers "for a minute." "This is your school * * * You are a part of it; it is a part of you."

Freshmen Girls' Convocation
 While the boys gathered in Memorial Hall, the girls, not to be outdone by the boys either in zest or number, assembled in Temple theatre. This meeting was in charge of the Black Masques, with Louise Brownell, president, presiding.

After everyone joined in singing "The Cornhusker," Miss Brownell introduced Miss Jeannette Finney as the first speaker. Miss Finney emphasized the advantage of taking part in college activities. The Girls' club, the Y. W. C. A., University Mixers and class affairs which furnish opportunities of which every girl should avail herself.

Dr. Winnifred Hyde then spoke of the cultural side of education and the development of the emotions through the study of art and music. She pointed out that no better opportunity for cultivating an appreciation of art could be found than the study of the pictures in the Art Exhibit this winter; of music than the University Chorus work. Her talk was followed by two cello numbers by Miss Marian Little.

Miss Ina Gittings extended to the Freshmen girls a hearty invitation to "come out to play," for both work and play produce school spirit. She urged every girl to tryout for basketball, indoor baseball, tennis or track and work up enthusiasm for the football games.

To Commemorate Dr. Bessey's Work
 In memory of the late Dr. Charles Bessey of the state university, federal government officials decided to change the name of the Dismal River forest reserve, the Loup division, to the "Bessey division," and the name of the Halsey nursery to Bessey nursery. News of the change has been conveyed to the state forestration commission by A. F. Potter, acting forester at Washington. In a letter to Woodruff Ball of the commission that official is said to have stated that the changes are made gladly.

County commissioners and daily papers, weeklies and commercial clubs, Sunday schools and railroads are asked to send delegates to Lincoln, September 29, to organize a federation to work in the interest of "Nebraska Dry in 1916." Every state and local organization, including village boards of trustees, may send representatives. The convention, expected by the leaders to be one of the largest in the history of the state, opens at the city auditorium Wednesday, September 29, and continues through Thursday.
