A Fifth Valley Championship

Only the game with the Kansas Jayhawkers, November 13, lies between the Huskers and their fifth consecutive championship of the Missouri Valley. The Jayhawkers, tutored by Chauncey "Beau" Alcott, former Yale star, were defeated by the Oklahoma Sooners Saturday, 23-14, in a game featured by open play. The Sooners had little in attack besides the forward pass, but evidenced a stiff defense. Kansas, reports declare, committed the fatal error of trying to beat the Sooners at their own game, and when the second half started, with the score tied at 7-7, sent three second string men in because they were efficient at hurling and receiving passes. Too late the regulars were sent in, and although one touchdown was added to the Kansas total, the Sooners had in the meantime scored 16 points and won the game.
