HOME COMING MIXER PLEASES ALUMNI

MANY FORMS OF ENTERTAINMENT SUCCESSFULLY HELD

TWO NIGHTS FOR "XANTIPPE"

Over Two Thousand Attend—Armory Decorated with Cornstalks and Pumpkins—Dean Graham's Order Bars New Dances

Following is the Homecoming program, which was carried out successfully:

7 p. m. Band Concert. Fireworks on the athletic field. Homecoming Mixer at the Armory.
8 p. m. Dancing in the Armory and Temple. Reception by the faculty in Art hall. Moving pictures of Lincoln pageant and Nebraska University activities in the new Law building. Dramatic club play, "Believe Me, Xantippe," at the Temple theatre.

Over two thousand students and alumni attended the Homecoming Mixer in the Armory Saturday after the football game with Iowa. Two hundred gallons of cider, dozens of doughnuts and barrels of apples were served to students and old "grads" attending the celebration.

The band gave a concert at 7 o'clock followed by fireworks, which was the opening number of the program. Then all went to the Armory and the Temple, where dancing was enjoyed. The Armory was elaborately decorated with cornstalks and pumpkins, the whole affair partaking of the nature of a harvest festival—featured in the decorations and refreshments.

A variety of stunts were carried out in the chapel, offering much amusement to many. At 10 o'clock the dancers went to the chapel and those in the chapel were given a chance to dance.

A reception was held in Art hall by the faculty at 8 o'clock and refreshments were served. Moving pictures of the Lincoln pageant and Nebraska University activities were enjoyed in the new Law building. The Dramatic club play, "Believe Me, Xantippe," was presented at the Temple Theatre.

Dean Mary Graham has issued certain rules pertaining to University dancing which are to be strictly enforced. Certain of the new dances will be barred, as a result of this action. The Mixer committee assisted Dean Graham to formulate the rules.

News Was Held Over

Because of the football edition being issued Friday, many of the announcements and news articles sent in for Friday's paper were held over until today. This will answer the many inquiries that have come to the Nebraskan in regard to the matter.

Arrange Colonial Relics

The members of the Deborah Avery chapter of the D. A. R.'s are here re-arranging the collection of colonial relics in the museum of the State Historical society.

State Historical Books

The Nebraska State Historical society is preparing two books explaining the work of their society, one of "Collections" and the other of "Proceedings." The volume of Collections shall consist of miscellaneous papers and documents, while the volume of Proceedings shall contain the annual and board meetings for 1908-1915. These books will be out in about six months.

AN ADDRESS ON ADVERTISING

Mr. Frank Blake of Deere & Company Addresses Engineers—Has Had 25 Years' Experience

In his talk on "The Benefits of Advertising to Agriculture," given before the Engineering society Wednesday evening, Mr. Frank D. Blake, advertising manager for Deere & Co., Moline, Ill., brought out in a very entertaining manner some of the difficulties, the magnitude and the importance of advertising farm implements.

Mr. Blake has been in the advertising work for twenty-five years and during the fifteen years he has spent with Deere & Co. he has had charge of some eight million dollars worth of advertising. Mr. Blake laid much stress on the need of practical educated men and concluded as follows:

"The educated man—the man properly trained for his life work—is the man to whom the world must look, if our advancement in the future is to outstrip the achievements of the past.

"Every college boy is a bit of insurance taken out by the community from which he came against the dangerous backward tendencies which sooner or later are certain to threaten the world's progress. Each of you are an investment for the public good, and when your college days are over—when the serious business of life has actually begun—remember that you yourself are a living, breathing advertisement of what such an investment can be made to yield in real dividends; that you, yourself, must be the final answer to the question, 'What has advertising done for agriculture?'"

COMMERCIAL CLUB MEETING

Men's Union and Commercial Club Discussed—Committees Appointed

The Commercial club held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon in U 102. The hour was given over to round table talks.

Mr. Meek introduced the subject of a men's union at Nebraska. He showed that such organizations had proved successful at other schools, and put himself on record as believing the time ripe for establishing one here. A motion that the president, with Messrs. Meek and Babson, act as a committee to make a report upon the work of men's unions at other schools and the possibility of its introduction here was carried.

The matter of a Commercial club dance was discussed and the following men were appointed to investigate and report upon its advisability:

P. O'Connor.
C. H. Nolde.
E. W. Schaufelberger.
R. H. Finley.
F. L. Murphy.

Nebraska is not a one man or a three man team. She had eleven men plying football every minute of the game. Any substitution in the line-up did not detract from the prowess of the Huskers. Cook, Gardiner, Shields, Abbott, and Reese shine among the stars, and in fact, the whole line-up must be mentioned when picking out the good players.—Daily Kansan.

PHI ALPHA DELTA BANQUET

Legal Fraternity Was Addressed by Several of the Law Professors—Prof. Pope Presided

The Phi Alpha Delta Law fraternity gave a "smoker" for the Phi Delta Phi in their club rooms at the Windsor hotel, Thursday evening.

Prof. W. L. Pope presided as toastmaster. Prof. C. A. Robbins, C. C. Flansberg, Judge Tuttle, Dr. Edwin Maxey and Mr. Robert Simmons gave informal talks.

The talks particularly emphasized the great need or moral integrity as well as legal ability to become a successful practitioner. In order to make money, one should take up some profession other than law. In this connection, Prof. C. A. Robbins quoted the saying of Henry Clay that, "a lawyer works hard, lives well, and dies poor."

Laws Meet Iowa Team

The Laws, acting under the admonitions of the rally speakers to treat Iowa to the best of their ability, took upon themselves the honor of meeting the team. By mutual consent—of the students—classes were dismissed and all proceeded to the train, where they practiced their famous songs until the train arrived. They then pulled the wagon bearing the Iowa team to the Lincoln hotel. Captain Barron thanked them for their hearty reception.

Indoor Drill Begins Today

Indoor drill begins today, when the cadets will attend a 5 o'clock class twice a week and attempt to master the text book part of military science. Regimental officers have charge of the classes. Besides the regular text book work there will be target practice, handling and learning the working parts of the rifle, and lectures on various phases of military life.

National Inspector Here

The National Inspector of Alpha Delta Pi, Miss Alpha Penn, is visiting at the local chapter house. They entertained at luncheon at the Lincoln hotel Saturday, and informally at the house Sunday for the inspector and the patronesses.

Economics Seminar Met

Prof. Jones addressed the Economic Seminar Friday evening on the "Non-Economic Causes of the War." The Seminar has been studying the economic causes, and Prof. Jones gave much new light on the subject.

Ruth McMichael, '15, Mabel Johnson, '15, Rebanis Sisler, and Helen Garvin were guests at the Alpha Chi Omega house last week.

STATE HISTORICAL MEETING

Banquet Scheduled for January 12—Mr. Blackbird, a Full Blooded Indian, a Speaker

The next annual meeting of the State Historical society is to be held on January 11-13. Preparations are being made for the banquet on the evening of January 12, probably at the Lincoln hotel.

Mr. Henry D. Estabrook, who is a possible candidate for the Republican nomination of president of the United States, has been secured as the principal speaker. As yet, his subject is not known. Mr. Estabrook is a native Nebraskan and the son of Experience Estabrook, who was very prominent in the early affairs of the territory and state of Nebraska.

Major Albert L. Green of Beatrice, is preparing a paper on "The Language and Customs of the Oto Indians" for presentation at the meeting.

Among the other speakers are: John H. Morehead, John W. Williamson of Genoa, Judge J. M. Grimison, General John L. Webster and Mr. Alfred Blackbird. Mr. Blackbird is a full blooded Omaha Indian, grandson of Chief Blackbird, of the Omaha tribe, who is referred to by Lewis and Clark in their "Journal" of the trip up the Missouri river in 1804.

With such speakers on the list, the meeting is looked forward to with much interest.

Ray D. Garver, '12, and Vera Stuft, ex-'16, of Fairfield, whose engagement was announced in the Nebraskan some time ago, were in Lincoln for the game Saturday.

STIEHM ROLLER AGAIN SUPREME

NEBRASKA FINISHES ITS THIRD SEASON WITHOUT DEFEAT

HAWKEYES EASY VICTIMS

Huskies Pile up 52 Points on Iowa Eleven—Nebraska Machine in Wonderful Form—Hawkeyes Count on Fluke

With the Stiehm Roller grinding out touchdowns at a war-time rate, and the Nebraska stonewall in perfect working order, the Cornhuskers overwhelmed the Iowa Hawkeyes, 52-7, on Nebraska field Saturday afternoon, thereby completing their third consecutive season without defeat.

Not since early in the season of 1912 has an opponent, Big Nine or otherwise, been able to stop the irresistible machine engineered by Jumbo Stiehm, and never at any time during these three seasons has a Husker juggernaut performed so famously as did Captain Dick Rutherford's 1915 valley champions Saturday afternoon.

The 5,000 people in attendance, a goodly number of them homecomers who were on hand to see the Scarlet and Cream team of today in action against an ancient foe, saw soon after the contest began that there was little danger that Nebraska's chances for another all-victorious season would be spoiled by the Hawkeyes. The game was Nebraska's from the start. Save for a brace in the final period, Iowa was powerless to gain ground consistently. Nebraska, however experienced little difficulty in piercing the line, while Chamberlain and the Husker backs ran the ends for repeated gains. And at forward passing, Nebraska also proved her skill when she resorted to it in the final quarter with the idea of adding one more touchdown to her credit. After six unsuccessful attempts, the gang got going, and in three passes—Chamberlain to Caley, Chamberlain to Rutherford, and Rutherford to Chamberlain—the ball advanced almost the length of the field for the last count.

Chamberlain was, as usual, the main spoke in the Nebraska scoring wheel. Time and again the big boy brushed past the Hawkeye wings, swerving in toward the center of the secondary defense or bowling the halfback out of the way by running into him full tilt. Four of Nebraska's eight touchdowns are credited to Chamberlain, but he brought the ball within striking distance more than once besides.

Captain Rutherford, Abbott, Ballis and Shields, who donned Scarlet and Cream jerseys for the last time Saturday, all played the game of their careers. Captain Dick and "Mother" Abbott especially distinguished themselves. Rutherford was Nebraska's mainstay on the defense, while on the offense he displayed more power than he has at any other time during the year. Several of Chamberlain's long runs owe their success directly to the superb blocking exhibited by the Nebraska captain. Abbott was down with the ends on punts and repeatedly broke through the Iowa line, killing Hawkeye tricks in the making. The whole Cornhusker stonewall
