GIRLS TO HOLD TOURNAMENT

Basket Ball Events to Occur February
18—Lineup of Teams Evenly
Matched

The girls' basketball tournament will be held the evening of February 18. "In my opinion," says Miss Marie Clark, official coach, "the teams will be more evenly matched this year than they have been for the last four years." Fast class teams are developing and many star players are on the floor. For the Freshman squad Helen Hunt, Fern Noble, Gertrude DeSautelle are working well. The Sophomores feel confident of victory with Camilla Koch, Grace Nichols, Margaret Anderson and Mary Means in their line-up. Marjorie Green, Florence Sandy and Edith Brown are out for the Junior team, and Camille Leyda, Lucille Leyda, Grace Metcalf, Clara Reiland are out for the Senior team.

I wish to announce myself as candidate for Editor-in-Chief of the Daily Nebraskan for the coming semester. If you, as a voter, believe that I am the best qualified candidate for the position, I ask for your support.

At present she is the president of the Nebraska Society for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. In addition to these experiences, Mrs. Edholm has been honored by having had several of her articles published by a Nebraska medical publication. GERMAN PLAY COMES ON FRIDAY NIGHT

SALE OF TICKETS NOW GOING ON IS PROMISING

MISS HEPPNER COACHES PLAY

No Efforts Are Being Spared by the Club to Make the Event a Success—Synopsis of the Different Acts Follow

The ticket sale for the big German play is now on; already many of the best seats are gone. The cast, according to Miss Heppner, is doing good work and it is expected that the play will be a success in every way.

The synopsis of the play is as follows:

Elizabeth, who as an orphan, lived with Baron Rockwitz and his wife, Bettina, has married Wiedmann, a poor teacher without prospects for advancement, because she had been conscious of a growing love for Rockwitz. For three years this marriage has prospered as well as could be expected although Elizabeth feels that she has sacrificed herself and continues to nurse her sacred grief. Under Elizabeth's management a better and more prosperous life has been established. Conscious of Elizabeth's acquaintance with Rockwitz, school inspector, Orb, a climber, tries to ingratiate himself with Elizabeth who, with his wife, comes to visit the Wiedmann's. Rockwitz has not given up his designs on Elizabeth and proposes to Wiedmann that he become the manager of one of his estates.

In a series of scenes, Elizabeth's relations to Wiedmann's children are portrayed. She is particularly fond of his blind daughter, Helene, who is in love with Daugel, a young teacher, whose ambition it is to become a teacher of the blind. The reason for Rockwitz's indifference for his wife is thrown into bold relief. She is listless and passive, while he is vigorous and aggressive. Rockwitz proposes his plan to make Wiedmann the manager of one of his estates to Elizabeth. He pleads that he is degenerating in her absence and must have her influence to save himself. Elizabeth confesses that it had been her love for him that had driven her into her marriage and attempts to make him see that his plan is therefore impossible. This only fires his purpose and he gives her until morning to decide what she will do.

Elizabeth had been completely sobered by Rockwitz's actions and decides to commit suicide, but she defers her step until she can put her house in order and provide for Helene. After dinner, during which Rock-

MRS. SHELDON AT VESPERS

Urges No One to Despise Their Youth—Should Look Back with Pleasure to It

"Let no one despise his youth," said Mrs. A. E. Sheldon at Y. W. C. A. Vespers Tuesday. "Let no one through the years, look back upon youth as not being full of happiness and youthfulness and sincerity."

"Youth is not the best time of life or the happiest. Life grows better, witz continues to make veiled threats, Elizabeth proposes to depart for the river, but encounters Wiedmann. During her conversation with him she is impressed with his nobility of character in contrast with Rockwitz's selfishness. He also discerns that he has not known her at her real worth, and "Happiness in a Work" receives a firm foundation for Wiedmann vows to see to it that his home is to be made safe.

Freshman Law Dance

The Freshman Law Class has arranged for their first dance Friday night, to be in the Alpha Sigma Phi house. It is the first dance given by a class "so far as the memory of man runneth not to the contrary," that has been attempted for fifty cents. Needless to say, when the price was made public, the tickets were quickly taken.

It will be the first class dance given in a private house, making the number of couples that could be accommodated limited. All the tickets have been sold. This will be the first social affair of the class, but President Henry Pascale promises more next semester.

Urge Democrats to Organize

Why don't the Democrats have a meeting and organize a University Democrats' Club? Surely if the Republicans have need for such an organization, the Democrats will need one, for the coming election promises to be one of the hardest fought battles in years. Every voter in the University should come out and support his party. There is no trouble in getting interest in local politics and it is hoped that a like interest can be developed in the politics of the nation.

LEROSSIGNOL GIVES ADDRESS

Outlines the Benefits to Be Derived from a Chair of Marketing in the Commerce School

Before a meeting of the Lincoln Advertising club, Monday evening, Prof. J. E. LeRossignol, the head of the Department of Political Economy and Commerce, gave an address on the work of the School of Commerce of the University of Nebraska and its relation to the commercial life of the state. He outlined the various courses in business which are being given and approved of the movement started by the Lincoln "Ad" club and endorsed by the Commercial club and other organizations in the city, for the establishment of a chair of marketing in connection with the School of Commerce. Such a course in marketing would explain the marketing of a product, that is, the route through which it goes from the manufacturer to the consumer.

Prof. LeRossignol showed that a professor of economics is bound to be abstract, while the business man thinks concretely, but that the student will be benefited by the theory. Because there are certain underlying principles of business which can be learned in the abstract, but which are fundamental to the conduct of successful business. The school of economics deals with these principles, which are the result of practical experience.

President Smith, of the club, discussed steps which had been taken in Des Moines by the newspapers to refer all questioning to a vigilance committee. Resolutions were adopted by the club to request the Regents of the University to establish a chair of marketing as a part of the School of Commerce.

CORNHUSKER STAFF LETS PRINTING WORK

CONTRACT GOES TO ROGERS CO.,
OF DIXON, ILL.

EXPENSIVE PAPER ORDERED

Binding Will Be of Tripoli Goat, Like
Last Year's Cornell Annual—
Several Improvements Over
Last Year's Book

The printing and binding contract with the Rogers Printing company for the 1916 Cornhusker specifies better material and better workmanship than have ever before been put into a Cornhusker. The paper used is to be 140-lb. Dill & Collins, Black and White which is the best as well as the most expensive paper suitable for halftone and type printing.

The pages are to be hand sewed on tapes before binding, in the same way as commercial ledgers, so there need be no fear of a repetition of the loose and unsatisfactory binding of the book put out last year. The binding itself is to be of Tripoli goat leather, which is a five grain leather and will give the book a little richer and more formal appearance.

The workmanship is guaranteed to be equal or superior to that of the 1915 Cornelian, which was put out by this same company last year, and which is quite generally considered as America's greatest college annual.

In order to maintain this high standard the printers have requested that only new and uniform halftones be sent to them for use, since it is impossible to make a good print from a poor halftone.

This means that only first quality pictures can be accepted to make halftones from, and the Cornhusker staff reserves the privilege of rejecting any picture which, in their opinion, will mar the quality of the book.

WAUGH BASKETBALL COACH

Lincoln Man Takes Up Coach Stiehm's
Work with the Squad—Begins
Work Immediately

Sam Waugh, of Lincoln, has been elected coach of the University basketball team and will begin work with the squad at once.

Waugh is widely known as a basketball and football official and until lately was as well known as a basketball player. Besides his high school experience he worked a number of seasons with the Y. M. C. A. squad when it was steam rolling everything in the neighborhood and a few outside teams. Work kept him from making the Cornhusker team, but he played with the Freshmen there.

Members of the team know his ability and they are perfectly satisfied with the choice of the Athletic Board. Sam was an admirer of Stiehm's basketball ability and for that reason the team may get along without too much of a break in their playing methods.

Waugh expected to work out with the team Tuesday afternoon, being anxious to get as early a start as possible for the Kansas game of Friday. The salary to be paid was not made public.
