terpreted in such a way as to enable the candidate to be his own representative. Mr. Greer stated that it was a hard thing to eliminate campaigning near the polls on the day of the election. It is his idea that on the day of election all the candidates should remain away from the polls entirely. He thought that only in this way could campaigning and vote soliciting be dispensed with.

Paul Flothow won out in the freshman class, being unopposed. For the sophomores, Norman Beachey Musselman won by a large majority. The fight here was easily the most interesting of the day. Harold G. Holtz led the junior race by a slight majority. Everett B. Scott will lead the seniors. Here again the vote was close. The closest votes of the day, however, were for the Cornhusker offices. Ivan Beede lost to Wayne Townsend for the junior managing editor by the hair-lash margin of seven votes. DeWitt Foster is business manager. His majority over Ellsworth Moser was comfortable enough to make it amply safe. Charles M. Frey defeated Guy Kiddo for senior editor by a small vote. Guy Chambers was selected as Ivy Day orator. He was not a candidate, but his name was written in on the ballots.

And Now Again Comes the "Irresistible" Marguerite Clark

"It was a nice combination Famous Players accomplished," said Kitty Kelly, movie critic of the Chicago Tribune recently, "when they arranged this one, Mark Twain's 'The Prince and the Pauper,' and Marguerite Clark plays the photography and directing they supplied. The quaint little romance is delightfully dressed up and pageantry while Marguerite Clark role of pauper and prince, aided by skilful photography."

More fascinating by far, it is said, is this latest expression of little Miss Clark's versatility than her bewitching character portrayals in "Still Waters," which made such a tremendous hit at the Magnet last month.

This picture will be shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, along with the Paramount Travelogues on the first two days and the Newspictures on the latter.

Thursday only, two Broadway favorites, Charlotte Greenwood and Sydney Grant, will be seen in a Charles Frohman comedy, "Jane." On Friday and Saturday Geraldine Farrar's husband of less than a week, Lou Tellegen, will be seen in a wonderful picture of the Sahara Desert, "The Unknown." The week's issue of the Bray cartoon will also be shown on these days as usual.

Kansas

The University of Kansas, the Haskell Indians and all the merchants and citizens of the city of Lawrence turned out to greet President Wilson and hear him speak on "Preparedness." They were disappointed, however, for just as the president began to speak a cloud of escaping steam from the air brakes enveloped him, and by its hissing, made a speech impossible. As the train was leaving Mr. Wilson called, "How's the university?" Several hundred vociferous Jayhawkers immediately informed him that "She's all right."

Illinois

There is a rule at Illinois which prevents persons from taking final examinations in any course in which he absents himself on a day immediately preceding or following a vacation. He may, however, get a permit from the department concerned to take the examination.

Yale

The intercollegiate basketball race of the eastern conference has resulted in a tie between Yale and Pennsylvania for first place. Princeton was thrown into third place by losing to Yale, with a score of 19 to 18. Dartmouth and Cornell together come next, and Columbia brings up the rear.

CLEAN ATHLETICS

The Daily Nebraskan in a recent editorial thanks those who were instrumental in bringing to light the facts concerning Guy Chamberlin's ineligibility. The paper is to be congratulated on the stand that it has taken for clean athletics. Winning teams are of course pleasant things to have around at certain times of the year, but if the way that the athletics are run is not above suspicion, the winning team loses a great amount of prestige.

We will miss seeing the Nebraska wonder performing again next year, but we heartily agree with the sentiments of The Nebraskan in insisting for clean athletics.—Daily Kansan.
