SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON, 14;
SIGMA PHI EPSILON, 12

Final Round in the Second Division of the Interfrat Tourney

Sigma Alpha Epsilon sprung a surprise when they defeated Sigma Phi Epsilon in the final round of the second division of the Interfraternity basketball tournament, 14 to 12.

Both teams played hard and were out to win. The Sig Eps were the general favorites and showed themselves worthy of the choice. The Sig Alph combination proved too strong for them, however, and carried home the bacon.

This game enables the Sig Alphas to meet Delta Tau Delta, champions of the first division, next Thursday for the interfraternity championship.

The lineup:
Sig Alphas— Engstrom, Corey, Hoefler, Emley, Nolan
Sig Eps— Albrecht, Townsend, Pickett, Kozitsky, Graham
Referee: Shields.

TO PICK GRAPPLERS TO MEET AMES

Matches between members of the varsity wrestling squad will determine the team to meet Ames next Saturday. There is keen competition in the different weights, and the team against up Ames will be up to Cornhusker standards.

Brian won a fall from Scheibel yesterday afternoon in the Armory. The match was in the 125-pound class, but Brian was overweight seven pounds. This added weight, with a better knowledge of the game, enabled Brian to win the fall in two minutes. If Brian can take off the excess weight he will be entered against Ames Saturday in the bantamweight division.

This evening in the Armory, Vose and Gutberlet will wrestle for one fall in the 145-pound class. Both Gutberlet and Vose are shifty men who know the game, and the match will be worth seeing. The winner of this match will probably be sent against the Ames Aggies.

The meet with Iowa last Saturday showed up the real strength of the varsity, in spite of some unpopular decisions on points, and the Cornhuskers will provide plenty of argument for the farmers. The elimination matches held this week will decide who will make the trip.

CALL ISSUED FOR OUTDOOR TRACK

Distance and Hurdle Men Are Needed

The first call for track has been issued. With Scott, Irwin, Bates, Bolton and Liebendorfer, the only members of last year's squad back, men are needed badly in the distances and hurdles.

The track has been recindered and is being put in shape for the interfraternity meet, which is going to be held April 15. Coach Reed also intends to send a full team to the Omaha indoor meet March 31, while he will also send a relay team to the Drake relay meet on April 22.

SPRING FEVER SEIZES CADET

A well developed case of spring fever was discovered on the campus yesterday, when a student was found fast asleep on a wooden bench in the cadets' locker rooms. Who he was, no one seemed to know, but from the gentle murmuring of his sleep one judged at once he was at peace with the world. The question was raised whether or not he was missing classes. After an hour and a half's good rest he awoke, rubbed his eyes and grinning sheepishly walked out the door.

CALLS NEWSPAPER MAN
TRUE PUBLIC SERVANT

"We are all patriots in America, but the right kind of newspaper man is an active patriot all the time. The newspaper man is a public servant in the true sense of the word. Unless he is a public servant he is not a good newspaper man—he does not perform fully his mission and his duty."

In these words Henry C. Campbell, editor of the Milwaukee Journal, described the part of a newspaper man in making "The Newspaper a Public Servant" in an address before the students in Journalism at the University of Wisconsin recently.

"To young men and women just entering the newspaper profession, I can give no more valuable advice than to take their work seriously—but not to take themselves too seriously. Of all the things that have marred the careers of newspaper men, I should place first a sort of cynicism, skepticism, superciliousness. The newspaper man who cannot put himself in sympathy with any good movement is a failure. A reporter must work with his heart as well as his mind.

"A man gets little from a newspaper, when he takes a place on its staff. It is what he gives to the newspaper that makes the position worth while for him. In those things that pertain to the community, there is no man in the community who can render more effective and intelligent service than the newspaper man. He should be an active and militant citizen. People make up their minds from what he writes and the newspaper publishes; it is the great trust the community reposes in him—and in which he must not fail."

FOLLOWING COPY

It's a difficult matter to decide which is better—that is to say, which is least exasperating—a printer who follows copy, out of the window if necessary, regardless of the sense, or a printer who, in his zeal to find and correct flaws, in your copy, makes you say things you hadn't the remotest notion of saying.

It's the same way in every other line of work. Some cooks will cook a roast as many minutes as you tell them, even if an unusually hot oven burns it to a crisp, while others will open the best pear preserves that you are saving for company, though you distinctly tell them that the jelly left from last night is good enough.

Some clerks in your office are never content unless they are changing things, even though the change upsets your carefully worked out efficiency schedule that is the pride of your heart. Others will continue to lick stamps and spoil their appetites for supper for ten years if you don't distinctly order them to use a sponge, and an original idea would be so lonesome in their empty heads that it would die before it received any recognition.

Happy is the man who has an employe possessing initiative, counterbalanced by common sense and an ability to obey orders.—University Missourian.
