THIRTY HUSKERS ANSWER CALL

FIRST FOOTBALL MEETING FOR SPRING CAMPAIGN

Rutherford Predicts New Methods for Next Fall—Team Cannot Live Its Reputation

Assistant Coach Dick Rutherford and Captain Corey talked things over with about thirty varsity football candidates in the Armory yesterday morning. Plans for spring football practice, which will start immediately after vacation, and the general plan of the work next fall was outlined by Rutherford, after which "Tim" Corey told the men what Nebraska and the new coach expected of them.

That the general style of play would be different from last year was the substance of Dick Rutherford's talk. He said that both plays and players probably would undergo a change—that men who have had little chance in the past to show what they could do would get their chance next fall. He then stressed the necessity for regular attendance at spring practice and the value of rudimentary drill to be gotten from it. In discussing the work of the regular campaign, he said that Nebraska could expect her hardest battles from the Kansas Aggies, the Oregon Aggies, the Iowa Aggies, Kansas and Notre Dame. The last, of course, will be the hardest game on the schedule, but there was no reason why Nebraska should not win it.

Captain Corey then told the men that it was necessary to have the support of the "whole gang," both old men and new, at spring practice, and reminded them that they had a man's size job ahead of them.

"We've got to deliver the goods next fall," he said. "We can't live on our past reputation. Dr. Stewart is coming with his mind already made up as to what we have done heretofore, and what we can do. It's up to us to make good."

GIRLS CAN DEVELOP A PERSONALITY

MISS HELEN BENNETT SPEAKS AT Y. W. C. A. VESPERS

Suggests New University Department to Help Women Improve Their Personalities

"Qualifying in Personality" was the subject of an unusually interesting talk by Miss Helen M. Bennett yesterday afternoon in the Temple theatre at the regular Y. W. C. A. vesper hour, in which she urged upon university girls the importance of personality.

"Personality," said Miss Bennett, "is the thing that makes every girl different from the one who sits next to her. It differentiates the individual. It makes humanity."

"I hope that some day that some one of you," Miss Bennett said seeming to address each girl personally, "will originate a new profession, one which will require tact, much original work, and that is, to establish a department in your university for the development of personalities. So far such a work has been left untouched in the college curriculum. To open this department it would be necessary to study the personality of every girl in order to make it reach the greatest effectiveness. College girls are hard to deal with in this line, for they resent criticism. A girl cannot develop perfection until she has remedied imperfection."

"The encouraging thing about personality," Miss Bennett continued, "is that every personality can be made good and desirable if it is developed along its own particular line."

"You cannot graft a foreign quality on to your personality and make it effective."

"Personality," she concluded, "must strike twelve in this age, the very first moment."

PREJUDICED OFFICER ARRESTS STUDENT

POLICEMAN ADMITS HE DOESN'T LIKE COLLEGE BOYS

Police Judge Dismisses the Charge Against Ralph Sturm for Speeding

Officer J. M. Snyder, of the Lincoln police force, testifying against Ralph Sturm, '18, in police court yesterday morning, admitted that his dislike of university students had influenced him in making the arrest. Sturm was held on the charge of speeding.

The arrest was made March 12, at Eleventh and E streets. Sturm was driving with four student friends at the time Snyder stopped him, and accused him, it is said, of going at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour. In court yesterday Snyder testified that he had estimated Sturm's speed at 25 miles an hour, but did not have any accurate means of judging it.

Police Judge Fullerton dismissed the charge and discharged Sturm when Officer Snyder confessed that his personal bias might have influenced him in making the arrest.

Riding with Sturm were Howard Hadley, '16, W. L. Aitken, '19, Harold Shubert, '19, and Miss Daphne Stickel, '19. All testified in Sturm's behalf, estimating the rate of speed of the car at 12 miles an hour.

SALESWOMEN IN GREAT DEMAND

MISS CARRIE BARSLOW TALKS OF SELLING PROFESSION

On Salary Basis, Teacher and Saleswomen About on a Par, Speaker Declares

"There is a demand for competent saleswomen," Miss Carrie Barslow stated yesterday afternoon, in her vocational conference talk. "Success comes from trying to be successful. Success is the answer to zeal and enthusiasm. If one is to succeed he must like his work and desire to do it better than anyone else has ever done it."

The essential requirement for salesmanship, as given by Miss Barslow, is the ability to inspire faith from the customer. The salesman must have good taste, must be able to furnish ideas that make each customer a satisfied one.

"Tact is also necessary," Miss Barslow said. The other requirements she gave were patience, courtesy, a sense of humor, a knowledge of one's work, system and a good education.

She spoke briefly of the comparative salary of the salesman and the teacher. After a teacher has attended the various out-of-town school meetings, taken the required educational courses and paid her expenses during summer vacation, Miss Barslow said she believed the difference in salary was more than balanced.

Upon the various departments, Miss Barslow said, "First see what you'd like to do, then look into the work closely. Not only see things, but see through things. Consider physical conditions."

NEED KNOWLEDGE OF COUNTRY LIFE

THIS REQUIRED FOR WOMEN IN EXTENSION WORK

Miss Emma Reed Davison Tells Her Experiences in This Line to University Girls

Mrs. Emma Reed Davison declared as she began to tell the university girls of the responsibilities, opportunities and requirements of extension work, in Faculty hall yesterday, that she was not going to paint the work rosily. She spoke definitely of the requirements that must be met by the extension worker, one of the most important being a knowledge of country life. Mrs. Davison stated that the way of mingling with people at the afternoon tea, which is more or less superficial, would not do for extension work. True comradeship is needed, the speaker said, and she cited an instance of a girl who, being entertained in a home where she was carrying on the work, helped her hostess with the various tasks, and when din-

PERSONALITY THE SUCCESS KEYNOTE

SO DECLARES MISS BENNETT, OPENING CONFERENCE

Tells of the Work of the Collegiate Bureau of Occupations of Chicago

"Personality is the keynote of success," declared Miss Helen Bennett, manager of the Chicago Collegiate Bureau of Occupations, at convocation yesterday. A personality is the greatest asset to a woman in a profession, according to Miss Bennett, who has helped hundreds of girls find their vocations.

The need of a collegiate bureau of occupations was first felt in the east, where women were met with more prejudice and found it more difficult to forge their way in a profession, than western women, explained Miss Bennett.

Realizing that college graduates needed a similar bureau, these inter-collegiate bureaus of occupations were formed with a threefold object; first, to put college women in touch with other professions besides teaching; to agitate vocations for women, and to investigate and open up new lines of work.

The types of women that come to the Chicago office are varied and in-
