UNIVERSITY WEEK A PERMANENT INSTITUTION

The management is to be congratulated on the success of this year's University Week. The performances were staged in important towns, and from all reports the effect on the people who witnessed them was all that could be desired.

Within the last week several thousands of people have seen at close range some of the work that the university does outside of the classroom. This means that these people will no longer fear that their children will have no profitable place to spend their extra hours if they come to Nebraska. The newspaper accounts of torchlight parades and fraternity initiations will no longer have much weight with them, for they have seen some of the serious work of the school in their midst.

Last year University Week was only an experiment. Its success at that time justified another trial. This year's outcome assures the institution a permanent home at Nebraska. Its exact influence will never be accurately estimated. But it is certain that it will become an important factor in the Greater Nebraska.

QUESTIONABLE JUSTICE

It is indeed difficult to justify the conviction and fine of a person who took a friend's automobile when that friend, upon discovering the truth, gives his consent and requests that the action be dismissed. The local grudge against students seems to be unlimited.

The objection that so many people advance against our judicial system is that it dwells too much on technicalities. The bar has long tried to outgrow this tendency. But it seems all in vain when an instance of this sort is brought to the public's attention. As we understand the case, it was not the fault of the presiding justice, but that of the prosecution.

No, public safety does not demand the following up of a case of the sort recently brought before the university public.

THIEVES IN OUR OFFICE

The best typewriter The Daily Nebraskan had is no longer with us. Investigation fails to disclose where it is. No member of the staff knows what has become of it, and it cannot be located in any of the offices of our esteemed contemporaries. All the evidence seems to show that it has been stolen. We have not objected when some person has removed the calendars from the walls, we have kept our peace when paper has been stolen from our desks, we have made no complaint when our scissors have been taken. But to steal a typewriter worth several dollars, and for which we are liable to the owners, is too much. If anyone has any information that will lead to the recovery of this instrument, kindly let us know.
