THE SENIOR CLASS GIFT

At a recent meeting of the Senior Class Gift committee, it was decided to postpone any definite action for the time being, and to call on the student body for suggestions. If you have any ideas on this subject, you owe it to the class to turn them in. Leave them with T. A. Williams, at the students activities office.

To start things going, we have a suggestion. Why does the present senior class not give the Student Union its first financial boost? It would be a few years before any material representation of such a gift would be seen on the campus. But we know of no greater present to the school than the corner stone of a great Student Union, the corner stone taking the form of the first substantial donation. Think it over.

THE REGIMENTAL SUPPER

Congratulations are due to those who managed the first regimental supper in the history of the military department. The affair was a success from start to finish. The attendance was better than expected. Furthermore, the men were told many new and important things about the importance of military training, by men who know whereof they speak.

We trust that the regimental supper will become an annual affair, taking its place beside the other traditions of the school.

story of the famous French war maid. The leading man with Miss Howell will be Don Marcellus. Marcellus made a splendid impression upon Lincoln theatregoers in his portrayal of the leading part in the junior play, "The Man of the Hour," and his appearance in the story of the middle ages will be watched with keen interest. He will have an altogether different role, one which is expected to test his versatility.

University students and patrons of the theatre in Lincoln are also anticipating Miss Alice Howell's appearance with the greatest interest. She has won a high place with lovers of the highest art in the theatre by the proficient acting she has secured from the students under her in the university. It is known that she has studied the part that she takes tonight with great intensity and that it has long been a hope of hers to produce "Jeanne D'Arc."

Convict No. 27,440 has finished a course in geology extension at California university. While doing highway work he was able to spend his spare time in study.

THE SHOE FITS

A few days ago, the "Rag" contained an editorial on "Students and Cuss Words." Those of you who had especially dull classes may have read it. If so, you will remember that it referred to three university students who kept the air blue with their oaths at the opening of the Western league. Since then, between thirty and forty students have met the editor with an exclamation something like this: "I didn't see you sitting so close to me at the game the other day!"

I cannot sing the old songs,
 I cannot sing the new;
 My ear has lost its hearing,
 And my voice has gone askew.

Have you ever felt like a cab-horse that has stood out in the rain all night?

FRANK LONG

There is a young man from the west,
 With a fine gift of gab he is blessed;
 He talks all day long,
 And loud is his song,
 Why don't Frank Long give us a rest?

GLOOMY WISH

I wish I were a pot of paste,
 All nice and white and thick;
 I would not have to use such haste,
 For I could join all things so quick.

WEATHER FORECAST: THE OFFICIAL DOPE

From this day, henceforth, an official weather forecast will appear in this column. The weather is a topic of common interest to all of us, so here goes, w(h)ether you like it, or no.

For Tonight: Partly cloudy; possibly light frost.

ANOTHER "FORD" STORY

A Beta freshman who was "calling" at a sorority house, one rainy night not long ago, left his raincoat in the hall, along with other garments of the same "denomination." The hours sped speedily by, and when 10:30 appeared on the scene, freshie, fearing a frowning chaperon, grabbed a coat and hastened homeward. Noticing for the first time that the sleeves were abbreviated to some extent, and that there was an unexpected belt across the back, he hoped that he would get home before the owner noticed its disappearance. But when, in the dim hall light, he discovered in the pocket, a postal card addressed to a well known freshman girl, the horrible truth burst upon him with tremendous force. Next morning, long before the breakfast bell, the horrid culprit stealthily left the coat on the front porch of the sorority house, and the unsuspected owner wondered how she could ever have left her coat out all night.

Who are they? Well, it wouldn't be hard to guess.

When we study our lessons till midnight,
 And then sleep all the next day,
 We are almost convinced that it really might
 Be better to do nothing but play.
