HUSKERS TAKE IOWA AGGIES MEASURE

WIN TWO OF THREE MATCHES IN TENNIS

Gardiner Defeated in the Singles—
 Aggies Fight Hard in the Doubles Match

Nebraska university won two out of three matches, and thus defeated the Iowa State Aggies from Ames on the varsity courts Saturday. Harry Ellis won in the singles, and Ellis and Chatt won in the doubles. Gardiner, for Nebraska, was defeated in singles.

Ellis played Marriott Saturday morning. The Ames man was game, but his play lacked the finish of Ellis', who won in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4. Gardiner played Beach, representing Ames. In the first set the Cornhusker was clearly off form, and won but two games. He came back strong in the second set, however, and when Gardiner took it and evened the match by a 6-love score. Husker rooters expected another victory. In the third set Gardiner led his opponent until the fifth game, when Beach came up from behind, evened the score, and ran out the set, winning, 6-4.

The first set of doubles between Ellis and Chatt, and Beach and Marriott, was bitterly fought from start to finish, and Nebraska's 9-7 victory was well earned. The battle seemed to have tired the Ames men, for they were comparatively easy in the second set, which the local men took, 6-2.

At the meeting of the club next Wednesday night "Nur nicht heiraten" will be played by a cast including Lena Lipsey, Geneva Seegar, Hester Dickinson and Ethel Kittinger. This play will also be presented before the German Woman's club in the Temple this afternoon.

The success of the club is largely due to the enthusiasm and loyalty of Prof. Amanda Heppner, who has given unsparingly of her time and energy to the work of developing an appreciation of German drama by students of German at the university by German speaking citizens of Nebraska.
