MAKE PROGRESS ON NEW BUILDINGS

DAIRY HUSBANDRY BUILDING COMPLETE BY NOVEMBER 1

Mill Work Will be Late on Bessey Hall and Chemistry Building

Work on the three new buildings, Dairy Husbandry hall, Bessey hall and Chemistry building, was delayed by strikes and lack of sufficient laborers during the summer, but in spite of that the progress has been satisfactory.

The Dairy Husbandry building on the farm campus is practically completed, and will be ready for class room and laboratory use November 1. It will then contain the best of the modern apparatus for teaching the dairy industry, and from the standpoint of efficiency be without an equal the country over.

The superstructure of the Bessey building is also about done, and all of the building work will be finished, in the opinion of Superintendent of Construction Chowins, within thirty days. There is considerable doubt that the building may be used this school year, as the mills will not promise to begin filling orders for equipment until February 1.

The contractor on the Chemistry building has not been able lately to get enough bricklayers to speed up the work, only ten working on the building in the past few weeks. No contracts for new buildings were awarded during the summer on account of the continued high cost of structural steel. Bids were again received on the agricultural engineering building, but the contract could not be let.

Change Building Plans

That the regents will be forced to substitute reinforced concrete for structural steel, if the building program is to be carried on as originally planned, is becoming the general belief. Architect Hodgson of Chicago is drawing all of the tentative plans for proposed buildings now with concrete specified instead of steel. The agricultural engineering building on the farm, and the social science building on the city campus will probably be built with this basic material.

When the new Bessey building is completed so that Nebraska hall may be vacated, the plan is to raze the latter building and use much of the material from it for the teachers' college high school building on the city campus. The new teachers' college building will then be semi-fireproof. The added space gained in the Temple building by the removal of the teachers' college will be used for an enlarged university cafeteria.

PHI BETA KAPPA DROP GREEK AND MATH AS REQUISITES

No longer will aspirants to Phi Beta Kappa scholarship honors be compelled to take Greek or Latin to qualify for membership in the scholarship fraternity at Nebraska university. By vote of the Nebraska Alpha chapter early this summer, the ancient language and mathematics requirement was removed, and all students who become eligible for the A. B. degree will also be eligible for the P. B. K. key.

Excellence in scholarship will of course guide the society in making the elections, and a student to be elected to the Nebraska university chapter must have completed at least sixty-four hours in this school.

AT THE AG. COLLEGE

The cafeteria of the home economics department expected to move to the boiler house in the agricultural engineering building, but on account of the effect of the war on the prices of building material the agricultural engineering building will not be built and the cafeteria will be forced to serve meals at its old stand in the home economics building.
