The scarcity of dyes in the United States has caused several universities to offer courses in industrial chemistry and the chemistry of forest products. The natural ability and resourcefulness of the young people in America will be given an opportunity to show itself in one more way—with permanent benefit to the country.

The "little green postage stamp caps" should be prominent on the campus today.

Don't forget your convocation today, freshmen.

The literary societies at the University of Illinois offer an entertainment course of six numbers during the winter, which are very successful.

This year, Johanna Galski, Evan Williams, Mischa Elman, the Portmanteau Theater, Tilly Koenan, and Strickland W. Gillilan are on the program. This is a business proposition as well as a representative work for literary organizations, and is a form of entertainment which appeals to university students.

Don't tell us that Nebraska won't have the Missouri valley champion football team again this year. With support like the Omaha university club are giving us, the team couldn't do anything but win.

SPORT SPARKS

Who gave "Mike" Selzer his beautiful "shiner?"

If Kansas plays that ex-high school coach, Nebraska ought to be allowed to call on Chamberlain.

"Tim" Corey gets shoved in with the rookies every once in a while. Surely not a mistake of the coaches. We'd rather think that it was because "Tim" likes to have so much fun with them.

Ellsworth Moser makes a fine leader. Moses was a great leader and Ellsworth is Moser.

Ben Dale is always smiling and that is why they call him "Pleasant Dale."

If that little midget freshman whose last name is Lantz got away for a long run for a touchdown, would you call him a "Free Lantz?"

We wouldn't mind being a guardian of some people, but I would hate to have Ward for a ward.

Girls who live in East Lincoln are invited to attend the S. G. S. class of the Vinc. Congregational Sunday School at the corner of 25th and S streets.

The class is beginning a course of study in the problems of youth in social life. Our Sunday School convenes at 12 o'clock.

PENITENTIARY INMATE DESIRES MASTERY OF CASTILIAN LANGUAGE

Convict No. 7761, an inmate of the state penitentiary at Walla Walla, has written a letter to "The Professor of Languages" at the university requesting a Spanish dictionary.

"I find," he wrote, "that I have considerable time in my cell which I could devote to the study of the subject."

He said that he had become interested in the Castilian language and would appreciate any co-operation which would assist him in mastering it. A copy of Hills and Ford's grammar is the extent of his library, he declared, and while good as far as it goes, he thinks it inadequate to develop the vocabulary which he hopes to use in the days when he is free.

Professor Caroline H. Ober, who received the letter, has called the attention of her students to the case. She is much interested in his progress and wishes the matter more widely advertised, so that Convict No. 7761 may receive some help.—U. of W. Daily.

HOME ECONOMICS COURSES TO BE OFFERED IN HOMES

University of Washington.—King county women whose arduous duties within the household have prevented attendance at the five-day housekeepers' institute held on the campus are not to be deprived of the opportunity for improvement in the arts of the housewife. The extension division of the University of Washington, represented by Miss Mary F. Rausch, is organizing a "great drive," the object of which is to be the homes themselves.

"For a year the housewives who could not come to the long conferences have been asking help," Miss Rausch said yesterday. "Now we are going to answer their plea. We are going to help any woman in the county who needs it."

"Any group of 30 women can have a conference in a private residence, a school, a club or any other place where a room with a little necessary equipment for demonstrations can be had. The fee will be one dollar, for which they will receive, in addition to the advantages of the instruction, printed recipes and rules for table setting and serving."

"We do not care to get more than $50 out of any course, but we have to finance our work. So any time the number of students exceeds 50 the group may have the excess fees to be used in charity, self improvement or as they see fit. Churches, societies, parent-teachers' associations and similar organizations may find the giving of housekeepers' conferences a profitable undertaking."

Miss Rausch has already plunged into the work of organization of conferences, and will go before any group in the county to tell them just what they need to do to start a successful campaign for an institute. She will make no charge for this initial work.

The conferences are to last one day each, unless other plans are requested by the group seeking instruction. Six lectures are generally in demand: "How to Be an Efficient Housekeeper," "A Lesson in Correct Table Setting and Serving," "Helpful Hints in Sewing," or "The Family Budget," "Good Taste in Dress" and "The Principles of Menu Making." In addition, Miss Rausch always gives a demonstration in cookery.

The work is planned so as to be helpful to every housekeeper or business woman, rich or poor, young or old, married or single.—Exchange.

for work in the factory and business clubs of the Scattle Y. W. C. A., according to the statement of Ethelyn Shipley of the campus organization last night.

Societies which have been formed among the women factory workers, among business girls and among high school girls for social and educational purposes require instructors, and Miss McBride, who has charge of the clubs, prefers college women in this capacity. Although other girls might be trained to do competent work, they could never assume the secretaryship in such organizations.

A university graduate is instructing the girls employed by the Sears-Roebuck company in gymnasium and dancing at the present time.

More numerous opportunities will be offered to college women in these activities after the annual membership campaign, which will probably occur in the latter part of September.—U. of W. Daily.

in the last few years, The Beltsac easily leads.

Here's a good clothes idea that "caught on" from the very first. Men found it easy, comfortable, stylish. The belt sets just right, the plaits give added freedom across the back.

Men who drive a motor car tell us that this coat doesn't show the wrinkled appearance a straight back model does after driving, and that they like it because it doesn't pull when swinging the wheel.

We recommend it; and are showing it in a dozen different fabrics.
